FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

The Chemical Corps in the Far East Command

BY COL. JACQUARD H. ROTHSCILD
Chemical Officer, Far East Command

THE Chemical Corps in the Far East Command is actively engaged in all the functions with which the Corps as a whole is charged, some in greater degree, some in lesser degree, but with the urgent reality resulting from being joined in combat with an armed and formidable enemy. These functions run the gamut of flame warfare, offensive and defensive smoke screening, 4.2-in. mortar operations, technical intelligence, and supply. Although the enemy has not to date engaged in active chemical, biological, or radiological warfare, the Chemical Corps has of necessity maintained a prepared defense. And in the event the enemy engages in such warfare the Chemical Corps in all probability will enter into its most critical mission, that of employing toxic agents to defeat the enemy.

These many and varied fields with which the Corps is actively engaged are elaborated upon in the following paragraphs.

Flame as a weapon has been used throughout the ages. In World War II it came into its own as a scourge of the enemy, but in the Korean action it has played a greater part than ever before, becoming a major offensive and defensive weapon, being employed in many ways each day to defeat the enemy's plans and operations. Napalm thickened gasoline, the primary fuel of the portable flame thrower, is in itself the number one flame weapon of Korea. It is dropped on the enemy by the Air Force in wing-tank bombs, and thus used is credited with the destruction of more T-34 tanks than all other anti-tank weapons combined. It has also been used extensively in the attack on both supply centers and fortifications. It is employed in tank-mounted jeep-mounted, and portable flame throwers. The Infantryman's realization of the effectiveness of flame as a weapon has led to new methods of employment, such as dropping filled and charged portable flame throwers from light aircraft to waiting combat troops. The increased use of flame has brought forth modifications in design of flame throwers, and field development of experimental models. Napalm is also used as a filling for land

Army Promotes 43 to Lt. Col.; 100 to Maj.

The Army this week released the names of 100 captains promoted to the temporary rank of major and 43 majors advanced to the temporary rank of lieutenant colonel.

The promotions to major, announced in Special Orders No. 146, 21 July, include 99 Reserve and one National Guard. The cut-off date was 23 May 1946.

Of the 43 promotions to lieutenant colonel, reported in Special Orders No. 148, 23 July, six are Regular Army, 36 Reserve and one National Guard. The cut-off date was 31 Aug. 1945.

The last group of promotions to temporary major and lieutenant colonel was published in the 12 July issue of THE JOURNAL. There were 100 promotions to major and 55 to lieutenant colonel.

The previous cut-off date for the captains was 23 May 1946, same as this week's, and the cut-off date for the lieutenants was 31 Aug. 1945.

Eight Ships Dropped For Second Carrier

The 1953 Naval shipbuilding program, including the second Forrestal-class carrier, the second Atomic-submarine, 38 other new ships, 350 landing craft, and four conversions, was announced this week by Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball.

Construction of the second large flush-deck carrier (CVB-60) was assigned to the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn, and the second nuclear-powered sub was assigned to the Electric Boat Division, General Dynamics Corporation, Groton, Conn. Four large ships and four smaller vessels were cut from the '53 program to make funds available for the carrier.

The two major conversions in the program have also been assigned. They are two Essex-class carriers, one of which (the Shangri-La) will be converted at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Washington, and the other (the Bon Homme Richard) will be converted at the San Francisco Naval Shipyard.

In announcing the assignment of the Forrestal-class carrier and the two carrier conversions to Naval shipyards, Secretary Kimball pointed out that only one private shipyard has the facilities to handle such work, and that this company already has a substantial amount of Navy work, including construction of the USS Forrestal (CVB-59).

The Puget Sound yard has a continuing conversion program of Essex-class carriers, and the San Francisco yard, which has not previously handled conversions of this type, is being assigned the second carrier. The announcement said this was being done "in order to help maintain a satisfactory mobilization potential on the West Coast."

One attack submarine is included in the program and will be built at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard. This assignment was made to take advantage of submarine design capacity available at that yard, as well as to achieve a more equitable distribution of new submarine construction between the East and West Coasts, Mr. Kimball said.

The remainder of the program will be accomplished by means of contract awards negotiated on a competitive basis and comprises, in addition to the ships already mentioned:

3 destroyers
2 ocean escorts
10-165' minesweepers
20-138' auxiliary motor minesweepers
2 store ships
350 landing craft (LCVP)

Mr. Kimball said "All these ships will be awarded to private yards, principally because of the necessity of maintaining a healthy private shipbuilding industry."

The two remaining conversions scheduled for 1953 will be conversion of two heavy cruisers to accommodate 3-inch 50-caliber dual purpose guns. These con-

Battle Rages for "Old Baldy"; Air Force, Navy, Marine Planes Hit Power Plants

THE most intense ground operations of this week in the Korean war centered on a dominant hill position, known as Old Baldy, west of Chorwon, where an inconclusive battle raged all week, with first one side and then the other in the ascendancy.

In this bitter see-saw contest the crest of the hill changed hands several times. Late this week the Chinese Reds had regained possession of the summit, but were under heavy artillery fire and air attacks. United Nations troops were dug in along the slope. Elsewhere on the ground the fighting consisted largely of sharp patrol clashes and local probing attacks by small units.

Naval surface vessels supported ground troops at the western end of the battle line, where the Battleship Iowa, the Heavy Cruiser Bremerton, and a group of destroyers shelled front-line positions. Other warships conducted the usual blockade, patrol and bombardment missions.

Thick weather, clouds, and heavy fog interfered somewhat with Allied operation of land and carrier planes. However, numerous sorties were flown each day, with interdiction strikes against enemy lines of communications and other installations, and with numerous close support missions for Allied ground troops, particularly during the heavy fighting in the Chorwon area, where attacking Chinese troops were repeatedly struck by air attacks.

The frequently hit power plants in enemy territory were revisited by Allied Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers and bombers, and again struck to prevent Red attempts at reconstruction. Air Force medium bombers used electronic aiming techniques to hit at enemy targets through the heavy overcast.

Strong Armor

The land struggle for Old Baldy, west of Chorwon on the western front, began late last week. Chinese troops, with strong armor, artillery and mortar support attacked the hill, then in the possession of the Allies, on Thursday night, 17 July, and were successful in occupying the crest on Friday afternoon. For the next few days there was a heavy artillery duel in the vicinity, and numerous clashes between attacking Allies and Red defenders.

Allied troops again occupied the hill briefly on Tuesday, 22 July, during the pre-dawn darkness. However, the Chinese made a strong counter-attack, with tank, artillery and mortar support and recaptured the crest. United Nations troops dug in on the southeast slope and continued the battle.

Heavy artillery fire and air attacks were directed against the enemy on the hilltop. Air Force, Navy and Marine Shooting Stars and Panther jets, as well as propeller-driven Mustangs, Corsairs and Skyraiders hit the Reds in successive waves with high explosives, napalm, and machine gun fire. One enemy tank and several trucks were destroyed and numerous casualties were inflicted. Three Allied tanks were reported knocked out by enemy artillery fire. By mid-week it was estimated that the enemy had sustained more than 1,000 casualties in this battle. No estimate of Allied losses.

In the fighting in this sector the U. S. 45th Division, which has been heavily engaged for weeks, was replaced this week by the veteran U. S. 2d Division.

Northeast of Old Baldy a United Nations patrol ambushed an enemy company on its way to a midnight attack on an Allied outpost. The Red company was dispersed with the loss of 35 in killed and wounded.

An Allied advance position west of Munsan was twice attacked at night by two enemy platoons, but both attacks were repulsed. An enemy platoon attempting to probe a United Nations outpost south of Panmunjom was driven off in a brief fire-fight at one o'clock in the morning.

Two reinforced enemy platoons, supported by artillery and mortar fire, engaged an Allied advance position southwest of Yonchon in a two-hour fight and then withdrew. Allied patrols in the remainder of the western sector fought frequent engagements throughout the week with small groups of the enemy.

Patrol Clashes

On the central and eastern fronts of the land line there were numerous light patrol clashes of minor local significance. South of Kosong on the east coast there were several sharp fights in which floating artillery of Allied naval vessels participated.

Taking advantage of improved visibility along part of the east coast, the U. S. Battleship Iowa shelled enemy positions at the eastern end of the battle line and in the vicinity of Kojo. It was announced that the big battleship has now fired more 16-inch shells in the Korean war than she did during the entire period of World War II.

In this week's firing the Iowa's main battery was directed at enemy troop shelters, gun positions, rail stations, and communications installations. Numerous bunkers, buildings, a communications tower, and trenches were destroyed or damaged. Several large fires were started.

The U. S. Heavy Cruiser Bremerton and the Destroyers Perkins, Bradbury, and Rupertus were also off the east coast battle line, supplying call fire support for troops ashore. Observed damage included destruction of several gun emplacements, bunkers, and munitions dumps.

Three U. S. Destroyers, the Rowan, Parks, and Barton, raked enemy targets at Wonsan with 5-inch shells, scoring direct hits on bridges, trucks, a train, several buildings, and a marshalling yard. Fog at Hungnam prevented observation of results of gunfire from the U. S. Destroyer Kimberly. The British Frigate St. Brides Bay patrolled from Tanchon to Songjin, and fired on important rail bridges. The U. S. Minesweeper Toucan captured a sampan and five men off Ansong Gap, while her sister ship, the Shoveler, caused several other small craft to beach.

In the Chodo area of the Yellow Sea, the U. S. Destroyer Henderson bombarded several west coast mainland positions. The Canadian Destroyer Nootka fired on fortifications near Haeju.

Carrier Planes Busy

Navy planes of the United States Fast Carrier Task Force 77 flew against scattered enemy targets in North Korea throughout the week, as bad weather closed in a number of other areas originally scheduled for attacks. Among the installations struck by aircraft from U. S.

Navy Selects Admirals; Majority Below Zone

The Navy last week-end named 30 captains for promotion to rear admiral, dipping far below the promotion zone (265 numbers down) for the second time in two years to make the majority of the selections.

Only six officers were selected from within the zone; one (Capt. Peter William Haas, jr.) was selected from above the zone, and the remaining 23 were taken from below the zone. Last year's board selected 36 officers and dropped 110 numbers below the promotion zone to pick up 25 not in the zone.

Five of those named from within the zone this year—Captains Armand M. Morgan, Robert S. Hatcher, George C. Townner, Lester K. Rice and Howard L. Collins—were taken from the first forty names on the promotion list.

The selection board, headed by Vice Adm. John L. Hall, then skipped 65 officers to select Capt. William L. Erdmann, still within the zone, and dropped 44 more names to pick Capt. John H. Sides, one of the 13 active-duty Navy officers who testified against the B-36 in the Navy-Air Force controversy of 1949. Captain Sides, who declared it was "folly for any country to stake its future to any great extent on the big bomber and atom bomb," is currently on duty in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Junior officer selected by the board was Capt. Robert B. Pirie, former Commandant of Midshipmen at the Naval Academy. Captain Pirie, who was 47 in April, is a 1926 graduate of the Academy and presently commanding the aircraft carrier Coral Sea.

Also selected by the board was Capt. Henry Crommelin, brother of Rear Adm. John G. Crommelin, one of the leaders of the B-36 fight. Admiral Crommelin was promoted to that rank following his retirement in 1950 after he had received a public reprimand from the Chief of Naval Operations.

The Naval Academy Class of 1925 was represented by the largest number (18) of those selected. One officer is from the class of 1923, six are from the class of 1924, and five are from the class of 1926.

Nine of those named are Naval Aviators, five are qualified for command of submarines, two are Engineering Duty officers and one is an Aeronautical Engineering Duty officer. Only three of the group are graduates of the Naval War College; 12 are graduates of the National War College, and one is a graduate of the Navy General Line School at Monterey, Calif.

Ages of the new flag officers range from 47 to 51, with the largest group, ten, in the 48 bracket. This year, five of the officers are, or will be, 51; seven, 50; five, 49; ten, 48, and three, 47.

Six of those named are holders of the Navy Cross; one has the Distinguished Service Medal; six have been awarded the Silver Star; nine have the Legion of Merit, and four wear the Bronze Star Medal.

In making the selections, the board passed over for the second time about 90 officers who will be involuntarily retired by 1 July of next year. Observers also noted that the Navy, by dipping so far below the promotion zone, has made it extremely likely that even larger numbers of captains will have to be retired on 1 July 1954 unless next year's board selects many of those who were by-passed this year.

The complete list of those selected follows, together with their current assignments:

Above Zone

Peter William Haas, jr., Staff, Commander, 12th Naval District.

In Zone

Armand Malcolm Morgan, BuShips.
Robert Stetinius Hatcher, Commander, Naval Air Development Center, Johnsville, Pa.

National Defense Plank

The following is text of the National Defense Plank in the platform of the Democratic Party, adopted this week at Chicago. The text of the Republican plank on defense was published in the 12 July issue of THE JOURNAL.

Our Nation has strengthened its national defenses against the menace of Soviet aggression.

The Democratic Party will continue to stand unequivocally for strong, balanced defense forces for this country—land, sea and air. We will continue to support the expansion and maintenance of the military and civil defense forces required for our national security. We reject the defeatist view of those who say we cannot afford the expense and effort necessary to defend ourselves. We express our full confidence in the Joint Chiefs of Staff. We voice complete faith in the ability and valor of our armed forces, and pride in their accomplishments.

Returns From Turkey

Brig. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, Chief of the United States Army Group in Turkey since January 1951, has been assigned to the Office of the Comptroller of the Army at the Pentagon.

General Cannon will probably leave Ankara for his new assignment late this month or early in August. His successor will be announced later.

NAIL OR A BRIDGE

More than 17,000 engineer items—from a nail to a complete bridge—are supplied military units by the Army Engineer Corps.

General Mark W. Clark, Far East Commander, stands with Maj. Gen. John T. Selden, Commanding General of the First Marine Division in Korea, and Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Commanding General, Eighth Army, as a Marine Corps unit passes in review.

Service Entrants Win Olympic Events

Representatives of the United States military services made an impressive showing this week at the Olympic games in Helsinki, Finland.

Outstanding in a field of outstanding performers was the U. S. Naval Academy's eight-oared crew which won the major rowing championship on 23 July by defeating the USSR. The midshipmen crew, coached by Rusty Callow, took the event in six minutes, 25.9 seconds to chalk up their fourteenth consecutive victory.

Struck by Ed Stevens, the Navy shell shot ahead early in the race to lead all the way. Coxswain of the winning Navy crew was Dave Manning. Others members were: Bow, Frank Shakespeare; No. 2, Bill Fields; No. 3, Jim Dunbar; No. 4, Dick Murphy; No. 5, Bob Detwiler; No. 6, Henry Proctor; No. 7, Wayne Frye.

In the track and field events, Jimmy Gathers of the U. S. Air Force, took third place in the 200-meter dash. First and second-place winners were also U. S. entrants.

The 800-meter run was won by Sgt. Mal Whitfield, USAF, in one minute, 49.2 seconds. The sergeant tied his own previous Olympic record set in London in 1948.

In the javelin throw, Bill Miller of the Marine Corps finished second with a near record of 237 feet 8-3/4 inches. He lost the first place to Cy Young of California who set a new Olympic record for the event with a throw of 242 feet, 3/4 inch.

First place in the men's boat jump (24 feet, 10.03 inches), went to the Army's Jerome Biffle, and another Army man, Walter Ashbaugh, took fourth place in the hop-step-jump event.

In free-style wrestling, Lt. Josiah Henson, USN, won third place in the feather-weight class. After three events in the Modern Pentathlon, two Army officers, Lt. Frederick Denman and Capt. Guy Troy stood fourth and sixth, respectively.

Second place in the high jump went to a member of the Air Force, Ken Wiesner, with six feet, six inches.

Study of Navigation Aids for Helicopters Underway

A study looking toward the development of navigational aids for helicopters has been initiated by the Air Navigation Development Board, a joint military-civil agency composed of representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Upon the request of the Board, the U. S. Coast Guard has detailed Capt. Frank A. Erickson, USCG, to a six months tour of duty with the ANDB to work on the project. Captain Erickson is an outstanding authority on helicopters, having been one of the first to learn to fly them and an active proponent of their development for many years.

Little has been done thus far to meet the particular navigational requirements of helicopters, but as larger and larger ones are being built and their range increases the need is a growing one. This is true not only for the Armed Services, all of which employ helicopters, but also for the expanding commercial use of 'copters.

C/S at Pentagon For Day

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff who has been recuperating from a major operation performed early in May, was at his desk in the Pentagon for over an hour on 9 July, it has been revealed.

Meantime, Special Orders No. 140, 16 July, announced that General Vandenberg has been granted 30 days leave of absence. An Air Force spokesman said the Chief of Staff is no longer on convalescent leave.

Blood Collections

Blood collections in the Armed Forces Blood Donor program rose slightly to 40-161 pints during the week 6-13 July, little more than half the weekly quota of 75-000 pints of whole blood.

During the forty-fourth week of the campaign, the American Red Cross and cooperating blood banks contributed 30-547 pints, and the Armed Forces Blood Donor Centers collected 9,614 pints.

Defense Dept. Issues Rental Instructions

The Department of Defense has released new instructions concerning charges to be made for government rental units.

During recent months, there has been considerable discussion concerning various rentals paid for government quarters by members of the Armed Forces.

The Pentagon is seeking to establish more uniformity in this regard and to that end has formulated the following rules:

1. These instructions, except paragraph 4, are supplemental to Bureau of the Budget Circular A-45. Each military department is responsible for establishing and administering a system of rentals consistent with these instructions.

2. An appraisal shall be made of the reasonable rental value of each shelter unit owned and/or operated by the Government which is, or may reasonably be expected to be, available for occupancy on a rental basis.

a. Reasonable rental value will be determined by comparison with prevailing rents for the most comparable privately owned rental facilities. Due consideration will be given to all factors directly affecting the rental value of the Government quarters in comparison with the relative desirability of and amenities afforded by the privately owned rental units.

b. In the case of housekeeping quarters, Government units will be compared only with the unfurnished value of privately owned quarters. In the case of non-housekeeping units, comparisons will be influenced by furnishings.

c. Survey of private rentals will be made in the closest year-round representative community. Rentals other than those which a willing tenant would pay to a willing landlord in a reasonably competitive market (compulsion on neither party) should not be considered.

d. Record of appraised rental value shall be made substantially as indicated in the attached appraisal procedure.

e. Complete coordination in conduct of appraisals is required in labor market areas where more than one military department has rental housing units. In addition, proposed rentals will be checked with other Federal employers having rental housing facilities in the same area.

3. In any area subject to Federal rent control, rental rates will not exceed rent ceilings established by the local director of rent control. Military departments may rely upon determinations of prevailing comparable rents made by local directors of rent control, in lieu of conducting appraisals in accordance with paragraph 2.

4. Rent for trailer spaces, inclusive of utilities connections but exclusive of charges for utilities consumed, will be established at $6 per month.

5. Where housing is provided with furniture by the Government, an additional unit charge for such furniture will be made, based on the typical extra charge for furniture in comparable rental housing in the area. Adjustments may be made upward or downward from this typical figure to take into account the general quality, quantity and condition of the furniture in the Government house in question, but in no case shall the extra charge for furniture be less than the amount required for 10-year amortization. Where the differential in the local private market between rents for furnished and unfurnished quarters appears excessive, charges based on the foregoing amortization formula may be established. A consistent policy must be followed in regard to charges for furniture for all housekeeping units on a single post or activity.

6. Rentals established pursuant to these instructions will be installed promptly after necessary coordination.

Appraisal Procedure for Establishing Rental Values for Quarters Supplied to Department of Defense Employees

1. A detailed appraisal report for all Government quarters furnished military or civilian personnel on a rental basis will be prepared by qualified personnel. For this purpose the rental schedules will reflect the market rental value of the quarters furnished. By market rental value is meant that rent which a willing tenant would pay to a willing landlord in a reasonably competitive market without compulsion on either party. The comparative approach to Rental Value will be followed to the exclusion of other methods, specifically, that of return on government cost of present value of investment. This means that the rentals will be based upon the comparative merits of the nearest and most similar current rental rates applicable to privately owned rental facilities.

2. In order to provide for uniform appraisal procedures sufficiently flexible to meet the scope, character and complexity of the rental value problems involved in a nation-wide survey to establish rentals on a uniform basis, the appraisal reports will be prepared in narrative form sufficiently detailed to embrace thorough analysis of adequate local rental data for comparative purposes to support the final rental rates assigned to each distinctive type, class or group of quarters.

3. The reports will reflect adequate coverage of the following items as a minimum requirement:

a. CONSTRUCTION DETAILS:
Physical description of quarters evaluated by type, classification, and rental unit bracket. This will include the general grade of construction work, materials and decoration, number of rooms, floor space, porches, garages, general appearance and condition.

b. EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES:
(1) Refrigeration (6) Screening
(2) Cooking facilities (7) Elevators
(3) Kitchen Cabinets (8) Telephone
(4) Closet space (9) Service
(5) Built in Conveniences (10) Utilities
(11) Plumbing

NOTE: (Exclude ordinary furnishings)

c. SITE CONDITIONS:
(1) Lot size
(2) Lot size per Living Unit
(3) Access. (Street & Road frontage)
(4) Restrictions
(5) Land Improvements
(6) Walks, driveways, shrubbery, lawns, topography, etc.)

d. NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT AND DATA:
(1) Local Zoning Regulations
(2) Public Transportation
(3) Schools
(4) Shopping Facilities
(5) Recreational Facilities
(6) Supply and Demand for housing
(7) Population Statistics
(8) General Trends

e. COMPARABLE RENTAL DATA:
Results of comprehensive survey of current rental rates applicable to the most similar privately owned housing in the nearest competitive or comparable neighborhood or community. Typical rental rates will be compiled, analyzed and tabulated and subject properties identified and described in the same manner as prescribed above for government quarters.

f. COMPARATIVE RELATIONSHIPS:
(1) Discussion of relative merits of Government Quarters by comparison with private housing units.

g. CORRELATION OF RENTAL UNITS:
Discussion of basic reasoning supporting final rental value units for each distinctive rental bracket.

h. PHOTOGRAPHS:
Photographs of typical views of the quarters appraised and typical private housing units cited as comparable rentals will be included in each report.

i. APPRAISAL CERTIFICATE:

I certify that the above rental values represent my unbiased opinion of the present fair market rental value of the quarters described. I am not now a tenant residing in such quarters nor do I have any intent to become a tenant therein.

New C.O. for Depot

Col. Sidney N. Storbraaten has been assigned as Commanding Officer, Sacramento Signal Depot, Calif., effective 15 Aug. He is presently assigned to the Munitions Board, Department of Defense.

Newly released photo of the Navy's F4D Skyray designed and developed by Douglas Aircraft Company to take off from carriers for attack against enemy bombers. The thin delta-type wing plus an advanced type jet engine gives a rapid rate of climb and high speeds. It is scheduled for production at Douglas El Segundo Division.

Start 2-Year Flight Study Of Bad Weather Landings

A two-year flight research study looking toward the provision of more realistic and accurate weather reporting directly in the runway approach zone has been initiated by the Air Navigation Development Board.

The military members of the Board, representing the Army, Navy, and Air Force, feel that the project has particular significance and value to the Services, inasmuch as the data to be gathered can be used to improve safety at military installations and to extend the ability of aircraft to perform missions in bad weather. Not only will this be true at ground military airports but also for carrier landings.

The study will be carried on under a contract with Sperry Gyroscope Company with the U. S. Weather Bureau providing engineering and technical assistance. The ANDB is providing $92,000 of its currently available funds to the Weather Bureau for its part in the study and more will be provided from 1954 funds. The contract with the Sperry Company calls for an additional $200,000.

Basically, the study looks toward a method of providing to the pilot, at the time of his actual approach, precise and accurate data on the visibility along his slant line of approach. Present methods and practice supply data on horizontal and vertical visibility, but the slant line—the third side of the triangle and the one of utmost importance to the pilot making an approach—is an unknown factor.

To study weather reporting, Sperry flight research pilots, engineers and technicians will fly 1,000 test approaches through low ceilings at MacArthur Field, Long Island. They will use meteorological instruments developed by the U. S. Weather Bureau and the National Bureau of Standards. In addition the Weather Bureau will test equipment at the National Airport at Washington and at Silver Hill, Md.

Members of the Air Navigation Development Board are Col. E. A. Sirmeyer, Jr., USAF; Capt. G. C. Miller, USN; Lt. Col. William M. Young, USA, and Mr. John E. Sommers, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Mr. D. K. Martin is Director of Development for the Board and Mr. B. A. Denicke is its Executive Secretary.

The Board was established in 1948 under a Charter approved by the then Secretary of Defense James Forrestal and the Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer. Its organization was recommended by the Research and Development Board in an exhaustive report on "Navigation and National Security." One of its prime functions is to formulate a unified program for research on and development of aids for a common national system of air navigation and air traffic control "to serve the needs of civilian and non-tactical military aviation but being capable of useful integration with any air defense system established by the National Military Establishment."

Combat Pay Progress

The Army said this week that "rapid progress" is being made in developing procedures for implementing the Combat Pay Act but reported that actual payment is expected to be delayed "for at least several weeks."

It was explained that extensive administrative information must be compiled.

The process must first await a report from the Far East Command listing the Army units whose combat service in Korea qualified their personnel for the $45-a-month payments. The list of eligible units must be determined before the claims of individuals can be acted upon.

The FECOM report, entailing an examination of records covering more than two years' action, is expected to be received by the Department of the Army by 15 September.

In view of these and other factors, the Army urged that inquiries be withheld until further announcements.

Col. Hertford Leaves AEC Post

Col. Kenner F. Hertford, Army Corps of Engineers, who since 1 Feb. has directed the Atomic Energy Commission's Office of Test Operations in its Santa Fe Operations Office, resumed his military duties at Sandia Base, N. M., on 21 July.

Brig. Gen. Leland S. Stranathan, Commanding General of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project Field Command at Sandia Base, said Colonel Hertford will again become his Chief of Staff and Deputy Commander for Army. Col. E. J. Walker, USAF, who has been Acting Chief of Staff, will resume his regular duties as Assistant Chief of Staff.

On temporary assignment to the AEC, Colonel Hertford joined the Office of Test Operations, SFO, immediately after its creation early this year.

Carroll L. Tyler, manager of Santa Fe operations, said:

"Colonel Hertford's tour of duty with us has been very productive. He has staffed and trained an organization to guide our field tests and to coordinate test activities which are participated in by many government and civilian groups. As Deputy Test Manager he participated directly in planning and conducting last spring's series of tests at Nevada Proving Ground."

James E. Reeves, Deputy Director of the Office of Test Operations since last March, has been named Acting Director.

Army Flyers

The Army plans to have 3250 aviators on active flight duty during the current fiscal year. Of this number 2500 will be officers, 250 warrant officers and 500 enlisted men.

Among the officers, 1800 will be used as liaison pilots in combat units and 700 will be student pilots in training. To man 10 Transportation Corps helicopter companies, 250 warrant officers are required, while the 500 enlisted men represent students in training to achieve warrant officer status under the helicopter program.

Gen. Twitty 5th Army C of S

Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, USA, commanding general of Fifth Army, has announced the appointment of Brig. Gen. Joseph J. Twitty, USA, as chief of staff to succeed Brig. Gen. Harold E. Eastwood, USA, who will retire because of age on 31 July. General Eastwood has been Fifth Army chief of staff since 10 Aug. 1949.

The new chief of staff is a veteran of the fighting in Korea. He was in command of the versatile Second Engineer Special Brigade when it took part in the spectacular Inchon landing with the 1st Marine Division in September 1950. One month later, General Twitty's brigade landed with the Army's 7th Infantry Division in the assault on Iwon in October 1950.

After these operations for which the 2d Engineer Special Brigade was awarded Presidential Unit Citations by both the President of the United States and the President of Korea, General Twitty took command of the Port of Hungnam where he directed all port activities including the large-scale evacuation of troops, civilians and equipment which ended on Christmas Day 1950. He then returned to Inchon, where he directed the rebuilding of the port after its re-occupation in February 1951. He was awarded the Army Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit for his services in Korea.

Civil Works Program

Congress has appropriated $561,901,600 for the civil works functions of the Corps of Engineers in Fiscal Year 1953. Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Chief of Engineers, announced last week.

The funds, included in the Department of the Army Civil Functions Appropriation Bill signed by the President on 11 July 1952, are allocated to selected construction, maintenance, planning and survey projects in the Congressionally authorized flood control and river and harbor improvement programs assigned to the Corps of Engineers.

Of the total appropriation, flood control projects receive $325,012,800. River and harbor improvements are given $236,888,800.

Construction funds total $448,106,600. This is made up of $243,670,800 in the Flood Control General Program for 72 projects in 30 states; $158,435,800 in the Rivers and Harbors Program for 26 projects in 23 states; $45,000,000 for the Mississippi River and Tributaries project, which embraces seven states; and $1,000,000 for the Sacramento River project in California. Most of the funds are for continuing work on projects underway.

Congress appropriated $1,255,000 for planning operations, of which $850,000 is for the Flood Control General Program, and $405,000 for the Rivers and Harbors Program.

Funds appropriated for surveys total $2,625,000, of which $1,600,000 is for the General Survey Program, $465,000 for the Arkansas-White-Red River Basin Survey, and $410,000 for the New England-New York Survey.

Ex-POW's Claims Forms Nearly Ready for Release

The War Claims Commission announced this week that it will release in the near future claims forms under Public Law 303. There will be two such forms, one for living ex-prisoners of war (WCC Form 611) and one for survivors of deceased prisoners of war (WCC Form 660). Public Law 303 does not include civilian internees of World War II or veterans of the Korean Campaign.

These forms will be mailed directly to all persons who have filed a claim with the commission under public Law 896 and whose claim has been adjudicated. A supplemental supply will also be available through the Veterans Administration, State Veterans Agencies, American Red Cross, and recognized veterans organizations.

To assist claimants in filling out the applications, the Commission issued the following summary of information:

611, for Ex-POW's

This claims form for living ex-prisoner of war compensation for compulsory labor and/or inhumane treatment is divided into two parts, a detachable instruction sheet and the application form itself. The instruction sheet concerns:

(1) who should file a claim, defining an eligible claimant as "any person who, being a regularly appointed, enlisted, or inducted member of the military or naval forces of the United States, was held as a prisoner of war for any period of time after December 7, 1941, by any enemy government of the United States."

It therefore will be noted that veterans of World War I or the Korean Campaign or any other conflict except World War II in which the United States has been engaged is excluded. Concerning Korean veterans, your attention is called to the phrasing "enemy government of the United States." The United States has not recognized the governments of North Korea or Communist China, nor is the United States in a state of war with those governments and they are therefore not enemy governments within the meaning of the law.

(2) The provisions of Public Law 303 are summarized by stating that prisoners of war, as defined, are eligible to compensation not to exceed $1.50 a day for each day he was held a prisoner of war on which he alleges or proves in a manner acceptable to the War Claims Commission that the enemy government concerned, and/or the agents of such government, violated the Geneva Convention of 1929 relating to prisoners of war and their treatment.

(3) Instructions are given regarding the way in which the application form is to be prepared. It should be emphasized that the applicant should write legibly, preferably type or print, their application.

(4) The remaining sections of the instructions deal with attorneys and agents, which are similar to those established in WCC Form 601 under Public Law 896, and emphasize the deadline for filing claims, which is April 9, 1953.

The application itself contains four sections.

Part I—Establishes the identity of the ex-prisoner of war and requests information concerning the place, camp and date of confinement. While it is realized that in many instances the ex-prisoner of war may be hazy to the exact date or actual place of confinement, an attempt should be made to furnish this information. The information pertaining to the identity of the applicant should be furnished as completely as possible.

Part II—A summary of the pertinent articles of the Geneva Convention is provided and questions relating to the specific articles are grouped to correspond with the provisions of the Geneva Convention which are cited in Public Law 303. It should be emphasized that this section refers to labor alone and while there may appear to be a duplication of the questions in Part III of the questionnaire, this information is necessary for proper adjudication by the War Claims Commission. Questions should be answered as fully as possible.

Part III—This section concerns humane treatment during imprisonment, and again groups the articles of the Geneva Convention together with the questions, which must be answered as fully as possible.

Part IV—The last section pertains to counsel or assistance given and contains the certification by the claimant.

660, for Survivors

The application for survivors of ex-prisoners of war for compensation of compulsory labor and/or inhumane treatment. As in WCC Form 611, this application is in two sections.

The instruction sheet, Part I, defines the order of survivors, following a definition of prisoners of war and a brief explanation of the provisions of Public Law 303.

Part II contains instructions and questions regarding the manner in which the application form should be completed and contains a further summary of the provisions of Public Law 303. Emphasis is made that dependent husbands should also file on WCC Form 511, the Husband's Certificate of Dependency.

Part III states the usual provisions regarding attorneys and agents, and the deadline of filing claims, which is 9 April, 1953.

Part IV gives a summary of the pertinent articles of the Geneva Convention respecting to labor and inhumane treatment of prisoners of war, similar to that contained in the application for living prisoners of war.

Part V states evidence need not accompany the application, if such has been previously furnished on WCC Form 650 for compensation under Public Law 896. It should be emphasized, however, if any change since the filing of the first claim has occurred, evidence of such change should accompany the claim. The War Claims Commission, if it is necessary, will request additional evidence as to the status of the claimant.

The application contains five parts.

Part I—Identity of the claimant

Part II—Identity of the deceased prisoner of war

Part III—Information concerning the imprisonment of the deceased prisoner of war, as to places or camps and dates of confinement, if known, and the names and addresses of other prisoners of war who were captured and imprisoned with the deceased, if they are known. With respect to this question, it will be helpful to the Commission in adjudicating the claim if the applicant can obtain such information before filing the claim. Concerning other questions under this part, such as to the treatment of the deceased prisoner of war, the applicant may furnish extracts from such correspondence as is available to him.

Part IV—Information concerning the marital status, children and parents of the deceased.

Part V—The certification of the claimant. It should be emphasized that, as in the previous case, the claims forms should be answered as fully as possible.

Claims will be adjudicated in the sequence they are received. Those claimants who have previously filed claims will use their old claims-number. Claims forms mailed directly to claimants will contain the claims-number and an identifying code. An acknowledgement card is attached to all claims forms to be filled out by the claimant and will be returned to him on receipt of the application. In all cases where the claims form is mailed directly, a self-addressed franked return envelope will be enclosed.

Your attention is called to the provisions of Public Law 304, with respect to the filing of claims to the War Claims Commission by legal incompetents. In such cases the claims form should be filled out by the natural or legal guardian or person having custody of the claimant. Under the provisions of Public Law 304, it no longer is necessary for a guardian to be appointed by the courts as was previously required. Public Law 304 gives the War Claims Commission authority similar to that of the Veterans Administration in such cases. The guardian or custodian, however, must in each case properly identify himself, giving name, mailing address, and the capacity in which the claim is being executed.

The War Claims Commission will be pleased to answer, at your request, any questions you may have pertaining to Public Law 303.

Navy Selection Boards

A Line selection board to recommend Navy commanders for temporary promotion to the grade of captain will be convened on 5 Aug., the Navy announced this week.

At the same time, the promotion zones for staff corps captains being considered for rear admiral were established. Officers eligible are those whose Line running mates are senior to Capt. Charles Melville Howe, III (Signal Number 1972). Promotion zones in each corps terminate with the junior officer whose line running mate is senior to Capt. William H. Benson (Signal Number 653). Both signal numbers are from the 1 Jan. 1951 Register.

Line commanders eligible for promotion to captain are those who will have five or more years service in grade on 30 June 1953, computed from date of rank. The promotion zone will be terminated with Comdr. E. E. Lord, III (Signal Number 2754 in the 1 Jan. 1952 Register).

The Navy said, due to recent legislation it is expected that the majority of those selected for captain "will not be promoted prior to the end of fiscal 1953."

Dates for the staff corps flag boards were carried in the 19 July issue of THE JOURNAL.

Maj. Gen. Ray A. Robinson, Commanding General, Marine Barracks, Camp Lejeune, N. C., will replace General Noble as CG, Department of the Pacific. He, in turn, will be succeeded by Maj. Gen. Henry D. Linscott, President of the Joint Landing Force Board, only recently relocated at Camp Lejeune.

No immediate relief was named for General Linscott.

At the same time, Marine Headquarters announced that Brig. Gen. Raymond A. Anderson, Post Supply Officer at Camp Pendleton, Calif., will become Commanding General, Depot of Supplies, San Francisco, on 28 July, succeeding Brig. Gen. Fred C. Robillard.

General Robillard will reach statutory retirement age on 14 Sept. and will be placed on the retired list on 1 Oct. in the rank of major general.

Col. Chester R. Allen, former First Marine Division Supply Officer in Korea will succeed General Anderson as Post Supply Officer at Camp Pendleton.

UN Medal For Navy-MC

Members of the Navy and Marine Corps who participated in the United Nations action in Korea are eligible for the United Nations Service Medal, the Navy Department announced recently.

The medal will be given to those who serve within the territorial limits of Korea or the waters immediately adjacent thereto, or in the air over Korea or over such waters, or with a National contingent designated by the U. S. Government for service in support of the United Nations action in Korea and certified by the United Nations Commander in Chief as having directly supported military operations in Korea. The service must be performed between 27 June 1950, the date of the outbreak of the Korean war, and a terminal date to be announced later.

Personnel who have already received the Korean Service Medal are automatically eligible for the United Nations Service Medal. However, some units not entitled to the Korean Service Medal may be entitled to the United Nations Service Medal. Such eligibility will be determined by the Chief of Naval Personnel or the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Navy said it will publish lists of eligible ships and units at a later date.

Waves Celebrate

10th Anniversary

Navy women will mark their tenth anniversary of service on 30 July next week, as more than 9,000 officers and enlisted women participate in celebrations throughout the country and overseas.

In Washington, D. C., this week-end, the Waves will hold a Tenth Anniversary Reunion at the Hotel Statler, with Admirai Lynde D. McCormick, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, and NATO Naval commander, as the main speaker.

Waves first entered the Navy in 1942 when Congress authorized the commissioning and enlistment of women in the U. S. Naval Reserve. The initials W-A-V-E originally stood for Women Appointed For Volunteer Emergency Service. In 1948, Navy women became a permanent part of the sea establishment and their designation was changed to Women in the Navy, but the nickname "Waves" still sticks.

At the Washington reunion, the Waves will be joined by Yeomanettes, their World War I counterparts. During World War II, more than 83,000 Waves were on duty in the United States and in Hawaii, the only overseas base where Waves were assigned.

Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel for Women, issued a statement this week in which she said "The Waves of the Navy take pride in the completion of their tenth year of service, and in the part they have played in the Navy's job ashore." She said she was "confident that every Wave, in whatever part of the world she may serve, and in whatever capacity, will carry on with that same steadiness of purpose, high standard of performance, and devotion to duty which is our Navy heritage."

Both Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball and the Chief of Naval Operations Admiral William M. Fechteler congratulated the women on their accomplishments. Secretary Kimball said, "During a decade of service in both the Naval Reserve and the Regular Navy they have proven themselves proficient and capable."

Admiral Fechteler gratefully recognized their "valuable service" and expressed confidence that the Navy Women "will continue to meet every challenge in accordance with the high standards they have set for themselves and of which the Navy is justifiably proud."

Marine Shooters Win

Marine Corps shooters, who have not taken a prominent part in International Rifle matches for 30 years, have turned in three victories at Oslo, Norway, including two new world records.

Maj. Harry Reeves, USMCR, set a new world record in the individual center-fire pistol (.38) competition, scoring 579 out of a possible 600. He was a member of the U. S. team which won the center-fire team shooting with an aggregate of 2,304.

Other members of the team were: Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, USMCR, Marine Headquarters, S/Sgt. Wm. McMillan, USMC, Camp Pendleton, and M/Sgt. Huellet Leo Benner, USA, of Ft. Kobbe, Canal Zone.

Another U. S. team set a new world record in winning the rapid fire, silhouette, .22 caliber competition with an aggregate of 2,304 out of 2,400. M/Sgt. Benner in the individual competition of this competition turned in a new world rapid fire record of 582 out of a possible 600. Other team members were Maj. Reeves, T/Sgt. Walter Devine, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, and S/Sgt. McMillan.

These and other Marine shooters now taking part in the Olympics competition at Helsinki will participate in the national matches at Jacksonville, Fla., and Ft. Benning next month.

CMC Sets Policy For Marine JCS Action

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., in a carefully delineated "policy" statement, has established procedures to be followed by the Marine Corps in carrying out the provisions of the recently enacted Marine Corps Bill.

Col. Larson

In his statement, the Marine Commandant serves notice on the Joint Chiefs of Staff that he expects to have access to all documents considered by the top military - planning group, and he further stipulates that they be presented far enough in advance to enable him to determine which of them directly concerns the Marines.

The new legislation, which was signed by President Truman early this month, gives the Marine Commandant a JCS seat when that group is considering matters directly affecting the Marine Corps. Observers have wondered, however, how the Marine Commandant would know when such matters were up for debate. The new policy statement not only clarifies this point but also outlines new procedures to be followed in the lower echelons of the Joint Chiefs' structure.

General Shepherd says the wording of the law "clearly places a responsibility upon the Commandant of the Marine Corps to indicate which matters under consideration by the Joint Chiefs of Staff concern the Marine Corps directly." He adds, "For this purpose it will be necessary for the Marine Corps to have timely access to documents which will be considered by the Joint Chiefs, in order that the Commandant may discern which matters are of direct Marine Corps concern."

First Meeting

Following passage of the Marine Corps bill, General Shepherd met for the first time with the Joint Chiefs of Staff on 9 July, THE JOURNAL learned this week.

The purpose of the meeting was to establish the procedures by which General Shepherd's participation in JCS meetings would be aided. It was decided at the first meeting to assign a Marine officer to the JCS Secretariat, under Rear Adm. William G. Lalor, Secretary of the JCS, to look at all papers going to the Joint Chiefs or their Deputies and to make recommendations to the Commandant on those which directly concerned the Marine Corps.

The officer named by General Shepherd for this assignment is Col. August Larson, USMC, who had previously served for two years in a like capacity for the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics, Vice Adm. F. S. Low.

Colonel Larson, as Marine Corps Liaison Officer, JCS Secretariat, will examine papers going to the Joint Chiefs, work on those which concern the Marine Corps, keep track of them on the agenda, and see that General Shepherd is briefed and the Marine Corps Staff ready when the papers come up for discussion.

He will also assist General Shepherd on papers that are being handled by the Chief of Naval Operations which concern the Marine Corps but in which the Commandant would not be primarily interested.

A JCS aide said in response to queries from THE JOURNAL that "General Bradley agrees that it would be appropriate to photograph all the Joint Chiefs with the Commandant of the Marine Corps at some future meeting." He said the JCS "will arrange it as soon as they can get appropriate representation in the next month or so."

The spokesman added, however, that it may be difficult to get all of the Joint Chiefs together because of inspection trips and because of General Hoyt S. Vandenberg's absence on sick leave.

Co-Equality

General Shepherd points out that "it will be further necessary" for the Marine Corps to have access to documents under consideration by the principal subordinate agencies of the JCS, and that Marine members of joint agencies shall "be accorded a status in all respects co-equal with other service representatives" on matters which directly concern the Marines.

The Marine Commandant says when documents under consideration by principal subordinate agencies "are demonstrated to have clear and direct Marine Corps implications, it will be the Commandant's policy to request that a member of his staff represent the Marine Corps on a basis of co-equality during deliberations on that specific topic."

General Shepherd states that it will be his policy to interpret the provisions of the Marine law "literally and strictly" in accordance with the intent set forth in the Senate and House reports of the Conference Committee which drafted the final legislation.

He adds, however, that "neither the wording of the law nor the context of the related Congressional reports shall be interpreted in a manner which undertakes in any way to expand or enlarge the sphere of activity of the Marine Corps."

Recognizing that "there may be numerous problems arising from the initial effort" to apply his new policies, General Shepherd says it is his desire "that Marine Corps Headquarters be advised of the nature of any problems encountered and the form of assistance or decision required of the Commandant."

With reference to the provisions of the bill which establish a minimum peacetime Marine force of three divisions and three air wings and their supporting elements, General Shepherd says the Corps "will strive to maintain" these units "in the maximum possible condition of combat readiness." He states, "These forces will be organized and trained to meet the requirements for ready amphibious assault forces as set down in the National Security Act of 1947 and reaffirmed by the current Congressional actions."

The policy statement was published in a Marine Corps Headquarters Memorandum, Number 59, 1952, dated 15 July, last week. It is signed by Col. James J. Keating, at the "direction of the Commandant."

The full text of the statement follows: STATEMENT OF MARINE CORPS POLICY, Public Law 416, 82d Congress:

1. It is the policy of the Commandant of the Marine Corps to interpret the provisions of Public Law 416 literally, and strictly in accordance with the intent thereof as set forth in the Senate and House reports of the Conference Committee wherein the final legislation was drafted.

2. With reference to Section 1 of the law, the Marine Corps will strive to maintain in the maximum possible condition of combat readiness three Marine Divisions and three Marine Air Wings along with the necessary supporting elements. These forces will be organized and trained to meet the requirements for ready amphibious assault forces as set down in the National Security Act of 1947 and reaffirmed by the current Congressional actions.

3. With reference to Section 2, the wording of the law, the intent of which is affirmed by the Report of the Managers on the part of the House of Representatives, clearly places a responsibility upon the Commandant of the Marine Corps to indicate which matters under consideration by the Joint Chiefs of Staff concern the Marine Corps directly. For this purpose it will be necessary for the Marine Corps to have timely access to documents which will be considered by the Joint Chiefs, in order that the Commandant may discern which matters are of direct Marine Corps concern.

4. In order to discharge the requirements of Public Law 416 adequately, it will be further necessary for the Marine Corps to have timely access to documents which will be considered by the principal subordinate agencies of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. When such documents are demonstrated to have clear and direct Marine Corps implications, it will be the Commandant's policy to request that a member of his staff represent the Marine Corps on a basis of co-equality during deliberations on that specific topic.

5. With reference to those joint agencies where some form of qualified Marine Corps representation already exists, it is the Commandant's policy that when a matter arises which, in the view of the Marine Corps officer present, concerns the Marine Corps directly, he shall make that fact known to the senior member (President) (Chairman), etc., requesting that he be accorded a status in all respects co-equal with other service representatives—specifically for consideration of the matter in question.

6. It is the Commandant's policy that Marine Corps actions in administration of the foregoing shall be taken on a literal basis, and that neither the wording of the law nor the context of the related Congressional reports shall be interpreted in a manner which undertakes in any way to expand or enlarge the sphere of activity of the Marine Corps.

7. The Commandant recognizes that there may be numerous problems arising from the initial effort to apply practically the foregoing policies. In those cases it is his desire that Marine Corps Headquarters be advised of the nature of any problems encountered and the form of assistance or decision required of the Commandant.

Defense Budget Summary

Representative Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, inserted in the Congressional Record of 22 July a summary of action taken by the second session of the 82d Congress on military funds.

He noted that the President's original defense budget for the current fiscal year was $50.9 billion, which was cut to $46.2 billion by the House.

The Senate considered an estimate of $51.3 billion, which was reduced to $45.7 billion by the Senate Appropriations Committee, but which was raised by the Senate to $46.4 billion.

As sent to the White House and signed by the President, the defense budget is $46,610,938,912.

The break-down is as follows for the Services:

Army	$12,239,500,000
Navy	12,842,459,642
Air Force	21,118,361,770

Compared to funds originally asked by the President, the Army's budget was cut $2.1 billion; Navy, $1.1 billion and Air Force, $1.4 billion. All together, the reduction was $4,779,770,858.

Extend AF Basic Tng. From 8 to 12 Weeks

Air Force indoctrination training will be expanded from eight to 12 weeks starting 1 August, Maj. Gen. Eugene L. Eubank, USAF, commanding general of the Technical Training Air Force (TTAF), announced this week.

TTAF conducts all Air Force indoctrination and technical training under supervision of the Air Training Command, which approved the new schedule last week.

Bases affected are Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Tex., Sampson AFB, Geneva, N. Y., and Parks AFB, Pleasanton, Calif., USAF's three indoctrination training stations.

Recruits entering Lackland on or after 1 August will go into the new 12-week course, General Eubank reported. Sampson and Parks AFBs will switch to the new schedule on 2 September.

All WAF recruits will enter the 12-week program on 1 Aug. WAF indoctrination training is provided only at Lackland AFB.

The new schedule will increase student population at Lackland by 70 percent and at Sampson by 60 percent, while permanent party strength, including instructors and support personnel, will be increased by only 13 percent.

The number of indoctrination trainees at Parks AFB will remain at the present level to reserve facilities for Air Base Defense School programmed to open there in January 1953.

Major objective of the change, which provides a 55 percent increase in actual training hours, is to restore the quality of indoctrination training which existed before the Korean emergency, General Eubank explained.

"When outbreak of the Korean conflict forced the Nation to expand its military strength, the increase in Air Force enlistments made it necessary for us to reduce the length of indoctrination training in order to handle more recruits with available housing and training facilities," General Eubank commented.

"The eight-week program has been inadequate, with the result that other Air Force organizations have had to conduct 'post graduate' training for airmen assigned from indoctrination bases.

"Since Korea we have been working hard to augment our training facilities. We have opened Sampson and Parks AFBs, and have added more housing at Lackland, with the result that we can now return to a normal indoctrination training program."

The expansion is being spread over a one-month period to reduce its effect on entries into Air Force technical schools, he remarked. Since two-thirds of indoctrination training graduates go directly to tech schools, an abrupt switch to the new schedule would have cut entries sharply for a one-month period.

The change will enable tech schools to accept more applications during October and November from airmen throughout the Air Force who possess basic qualifications for technical training and who who desire to improve their capabilities for more responsible duties.

In comparison to the new Air Force indoctrination schedule, the Navy has conducted a comparable program for some time, while Army recruits undergo a general eight-week course, followed by additional basic instruction in one of the Army's specialized branches.

Reassign Flight Nurses

Ten flight nurses, members of the 1453d Medical Air Evacuation Squadron, will depart Hickam AFB, Hawaii, the latter part of July for their new assignments on the mainland.

They have been serving for two years on the Pacific airlift between Haneda AFB, Japan, and Travis AFB, Calif., flying in Douglas C-54's, Boeing C-97's, and Douglas C-74's, four-engine evacuation aircraft. The 1453d MAES is a unit within Pacific Division, Military Air Transport Service which has been active in the airlift since the start of the Korean war. About 44,000 sick and wounded personnel have been evacuated since July 1950 by these MATS aircraft.

The ten nurses and their next assignments are: Maj. Sara C. Hall, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio; Capt. Gertrude G. Davidson, Sampson AFB, N. Y.; Capt. Anne H. DeSchepper, Selfridge AFB, Mich.; Capt. Marian E. Leeper, Lowry AFB, Colo.; Capt. Elaine M. Nigro, Ellington AFB, Tex.; Capt. Regina C. O'Donnell, Sampson AFB, N. Y.; Capt. Mary Orichella, Scott AFB, Ill.; Lt. Stella E. Nidock, Nellis AFB, Nev.; and Lt. Alberta F. Maisey, Nellis AFB, Nev.

Rebuild Air Guard

The Air National Guard, which during fiscal year 1951 provided 22 wings and 45,500 officers and airmen for active duty, estimates that the manning of units being released from service will be completed within two years after their return.

According to Maj. Gen. Earl T. Ricks, Chief, Air Force Division, National Guard Bureau, a recent survey of about 20,000 Air National Guardsmen in active service showed that over 11,000 planned to re-affiliate with the ANG.

During the current fiscal year, a total of 23,000 men will be necessary to reach planned strengths. Air Force officials are certain that this goal will be met with little difficulty.

The Air National Guard, begun in 1946 with a single unit of 44 persons, reached a strength of 601 Federally recognized units of about 50,000 officers and airmen at the time of outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

ATRC Staff Changes

Changes in assignments affecting three top Air Training Command staff offices were announced this week at Scott AFB, Ill.

Col. Joseph W. Kellogg, assistant to the chief of staff since December 1949, has been ordered to Washington to serve in the office of the Director of Training, Headquarters, Air Force. He left Scott AFB 24 July and will report to his new assignment 15 Aug.

Replacing him will be Lt. Col. Wallace E. Grubbs, administrative assistant to the deputy chief of staff for materiel at ATRC the past two years.

Col. Henry D. Smith, Jr., deputy chief of staff for personnel since May 1950, and Col. Castex P. Conner, deputy chief of staff for materiel since the spring of 1947, have been ordered to Washington to attend the Industrial College of the Armed Forces for 42 weeks at Ft. Leslie J. McNair. They left Scott AFB this week and will report to the college 21 Aug.

Succeeding Colonel Smith will be Col. William H. Leach, a recent graduate of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. Colonel Conner's successor will be Col. Francis X. Purcell, Jr., ATRC assistant to the deputy chief of staff for materiel since March, 1951.

Jets Aid B-29 Training

The Air Force has assigned eight F-80 Shooting Stars to Randolph AFB, Tex., to be used as aids in the training of B-29 combat crews.

Reports from Korea indicated that the B-29 training should include practice in jet fighter interception.

Meantime, Lt. Col. Richard E. Hale, training analysis and development officer for the combat crew training program at Randolph, recently returned from Korea and reported that combat commanders are pleased with the quality of the replacement crews.

At the present time, the average tour of duty for the B-29 crews in Korea is about six months or from 20-35 missions, Colonel Hale related.

ROTC Under Air Univ.

The Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps officially becomes a part of the Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala., on 1 Aug., with the formal transfer of the program from Continental Air Command to the University.

A new national headquarters of the AF ROTC is being opened in downtown Montgomery, Ala., at Bell and Whitman Streets.

The transfer involves AF ROTC units of more than 145,000 students on 220 college campuses throughout this country, in Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

Lt. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, USAF, commanding general of the Air University, announced the program is being headed by Brig. Gen. Matthew K. Deichmann, USAF, former Director of Education at the Air University, now AF ROTC Commandant.

Other key personnel include: Col. E. W. Napier, Deputy Commandant; former Professor of Air Science and Tactics, Texas A&M College, Tex.; Col. Henry Dittman, Chief of Staff, recent graduate of the Air University's Air War College; Col. Marshall H. Strickler, Inspector General; assigned from his former position as Deputy Chief, AF ROTC Division, United States Air Force; Lt. Col. Stanley Bryzozka, Adjutant General, formerly Adjutant, USAF Institute of Technology, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Col. George H. Hollingsworth, Assistant Chief of Staff, Plans and Operations, formerly Chief, Plans and Requirements Branch, Plans and Operations Division, Headquarters, Air University; Col. Thomas M. Bennett, Assistant Chief of Staff, Personnel, former Commanding Officer, 86th Maintenance and Supply Group, Neubiberg, Germany; Col. N. S. Cobb, Assistant Chief of Staff, Logistics Division, formerly Assistant Deputy for materiel, Tenth Air Force.

The liaison division, comprised of ten field teams under the supervision of Colonel Napier, will make frequent visits to each college and university throughout the nation.

The transfer brings to the Air University system approximately 3,300 additional officers and airmen, most of whom are stationed at colleges and universities. Headquarters of the Air Force ROTC has been established as a branch of the Air University in Montgomery with about 200 officers, airmen and civilian employees.

The Air University already had more than 8,500 students annually in courses varying from one week to 10 months, hundreds of others at colleges and universities throughout the country, and more than 45,000 correspondence students in all parts of the world. Addition of the AF ROTC program gives the Air University an overall total of more than 200,000 students.

JADF Returned Real Estate

Brig. Gen. Delmar T. Spivey, USAF, Commanding General, Japan Air Defense Force, reports that his command has released and returned to Japanese landowners a total of 806,539 acres of real estate since January 1951.

In addition to the land acreage released, the Japan Air Defense Force has returned a total of 130 buildings to the Japanese in the same period. "These structures composed a total floor area of 453,129 square feet," General Spivey said.

Stating that his Japan Air Defense Force will continue its program to "accomplish our mission with the absolute minimum possible requirement for building space and airbase areas," General Spivey said that all Japanese rehabilitated houses now in use by security forces will be returned to their owners by the end of next March.

Fly Strato Balloons Under Close Control

Success for the first time in flying balloons at controlled, constant altitudes in the stratosphere, for periods of over three days is announced by the Air Force.

The announcement was included in a report on progress by the Air Force in its upper air research project, being conducted at altitudes between 50,000 and 100,000 feet.

This project, "Moby Dick," utilizes polyethylene plastic balloons to carry necessary research instrumentation into the air. The United States Navy pioneered the use of this type of balloon through its project "Sky Hook," which is obtaining new cosmic ray data.

Moby Dick Begun In '51

"Moby Dick" was started in June 1951 by the Air Research and Development Command to obtain upper air information vital to present and future Air Force operations. The project seeks data on the state of winds, temperatures, atmospheric pressures, turbulence and types of cloud formations at these high levels. Such information will aid future Air Force aircraft and guided missile developments involving operations at increasingly higher altitudes. Findings also will be of direct benefit to the public through contributions to weather forecasting.

The recently completed experimental phase of the project, conducted by the Air Research and Development Command's operating agencies—the Geophysics Research Division, Air Force Cambridge Research Center (Cambridge, Massachusetts) and the Wright Air Development Center (Dayton, Ohio)—included the development of necessary instrumentation, procedures and methods of evaluation.

Instruments and procedures for the project are now standardized and are being given final flight tests prior to full-scale research flights which will start this fall from three West Coast launching sites—one in the Northwest, and two in California. Daily launchings will be attempted from each of the three sites until the prevailing stratospheric winds change direction. The launching sites then will be shifted to the East Coast to keep the balloons over the continental United States and within the limits of the ground tracking equipment.

Equipment Is Suspended

Well suited to high altitude flight, the balloons are from 45 to 110 feet in diameter, and up to 130 feet long. Equipment carried aloft is suspended approximately 100 feet below the balloon.

An outstanding result of the program is the perfecting of safety devices in balloon air operation. If a balloon's rate of ascent slows up prematurely, a device automatically destroys it and a parachute eases the equipment to the ground. Once above 30,000 feet, the balloon rises to the pre-set altitude it will fly at constantly to acquire research data via the instrumentation included in the load suspended beneath the balloon. The balloons have lights for night recognition.

To maintain a constant altitude, a very fine steel dust is used for ballast on most flights. While the ballast is slowly expended, the balloon is controlled at its desired altitude. The ballast is completely dispersed by the time it reaches the ground. On some flights a liquid ballast is used.

Fastest Descent At Sunset

When the balloon starts its descent, which is more rapid at sunset than at any other time, it is destroyed automatically at 30,000 feet and the parachute takes over. The equipment parachuted to the ground lands with approximately the same impact as a parachutist.

Much of the "Moby Dick" operation has been used thus far to perfect organization required to track these high-flying balloons. Direction finding stations of the Air Force's Airways and Air Communications Service and of the Navy, the same facilities used to locate lost aircraft, keep watch over the balloons. These stations turn the data over to the Air Weather Service at Lowry AFB, Colorado.

The entire cycle—from position location to the time of plotting—takes only 20 minutes. This plotted information enables project officers to know not only where the balloon is at a specific time, but also assists in the recovery of the equipment to be studied for answers to upper air flight.

Civil Aeronautics Air Route Traffic Control is provided with hourly position reports. Three hours prior to the time the balloon releases its load via parachute, the CAA is informed of the approximate time and place of release. Canadian stations are also participating in tracking balloons which stray into Canada.

Of the many major experimental balloons released to date, approximately one-half have had their loads recovered intact by the Air Force. Others were casualties during inflation, launching or in flight as the result of balloon failures.

Public Helps

The public has played an important role in the recovery of research equipment flown in past tests. Complete instructions for those finding such equipment are attached to all "Moby Dick" equipment, including notice that the finder is entitled to a reward. Air Force officials stress that while equipment may not be of value to the finder, it must be recovered intact by the Air Force for maximum results in this research effort.

The balloons used in these tests are provided by Winzen Research Incorporated, South St. Paul, Minnesota, and General Mills, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Tufts College and Wentworth Institute of Boston have made major contributions in developing equipment and techniques for the over-all project.

Airmen Promotion Quotas

The Air Force has authorized the following promotion of airmen during July and August—quotas are now released for two-month periods:

Master Sergeant, 845; technical sergeant, 2595; staff sergeant, 9471; airman first class, 19,871; and airman second class, 22,236.

At the same time, the Air Force discontinued the policy of permitting the promotion of those serving in a higher duty AFS unless the airman is fully qualified in the higher AFS and has been awarded the higher AFSC.

Chaplains Association In Critical Mood

The Military Chaplains Association, meeting in its 21st annual convention at Fort Slocum, N. Y., was attacked this week by its own membership for "do-nothingism."

Col. Joseph R. Koch, Commandant of the Chaplains School at Fort Slocum, called on the association for a "blueprint of action" similar to the activities of the large veterans' organizations, the VFW and American Legion. He told the 200 members attending the convention, "we have but a mythical organization," and recommended that a committee be appointed to "study and chart a program of action which will translate into deeds the sublime purpose of the association."

Brig. Gen. Henry Darlington started the self-criticism by remarking that "too little time has been spent in planning for the coming year."

Lt. Col. Aryeh Lev, director of religious activities for the National Jewish Welfare Board, suggested that the association promote UMT among civilian clergymen. He said chaplains could "evaluate the problem on the basis of experience rather than from the strictly theological viewpoint of ministers in civilian communities still expressing fear theories which are not in accord with the times."

General Darlington reported on the proposed construction of an eight-twelve million dollar memorial chapel to be built in Arlington National Cemetery. Three sites for the chapel have been inspected by Brig. Gen. George E. Rixey, secretary-treasurer of the association, and preliminary plans drawn by a New York architects' firm.

Speakers at a luncheon on 23 July included Maj. Gen. Ivan Bennett, Chief of Army Chaplains, who was named a member of the committee to present the 1950 association award to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. Other speakers included Ward E. Arbury, Grand Master of the New York State Masonic Lodge, and Herbert A. Philbrick, former FBI counterspy.

AF Advisory Group

Establishment of a Technical Advisory Group for the Air Force Armament Center is announced by Brig. Gen. Edward P. Mechling, USAF, commanding general of the center at Eglin AFB, Fla.

This group will serve primarily as consultant to the center, which is one of the eight centers comprising the Air Research and Development Command. Representing the nation's outstanding scientists, educators and engineers in the field of engineering and development, the group will give their individual and collective assistance toward solving the continuing, complex problems of instrumentation required to successfully accomplish development testing of new armament.

First of a series of meetings at the Armament Center was held recently, during which the group was informed of the center's current projects. In addition, the group made recommendations following the discussions of specific problems confronting armament development testing, such as instrumentation for testing aircraft armament used in air-to-air and air-to-ground firing systems, as well as bombing systems.

The Air Force Armament Center was established on 1 Dec. 1951 as part of the Air Research and Development Command. The Center's primary mission is the testing of all types of aircraft armament, the conducting of research and development related to such tests and the providing of test facilities for contractors and other governmental agencies. To date approximately $20,000,000 has been authorized and appropriated for the technical facilities and instrumentation required at this center.

Members of the Armament Center's Technical Advisory Group are:

Dr. H. H. Bailey, Military Electronics Dept., Whippany Laboratory, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., Whippany, N. J.; Dr. Walter Bartky, Director, Institute for Air Weapons Research, Museum of Science and Industry, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.; Mr. Robert R. International Exchange Of Air Cadets Underway

President Truman will extend a personal welcome to 111 foreign cadets in the Rose Garden on the White House grounds on 29 July when they arrive to participate in the annual International Cadet Exchange Program. The young air enthusiasts will be guests of Civil Air Patrol, official auxiliary of the U. S. Air Force.

The Exchange, in its fifth consecutive year, began on 21 July in Washington when 110 CAP cadets en route to Europe, Brazil, Mexico, Canada and England were briefed on the countries they are to visit. Announcement of the 1952 Cadet Exchange was made at CAP National Headquarters in Washington by Maj. Gen. Luvas V. Beau, National Commander, CAP.

This year 15 countries participated with CAP in the Exchange, with the foreign cadets visiting 14 states.

Following their visit to states throughout the U. S., the entire group will again meet in New York City for a four-day program. They will be billeted at the Hotel Astor, while winding up their visit to the States in New York.

CAP cadets will visit these foreign nations as part of the Exchange. Escorting the cadets to each of the 14 countries will be one senior member of CAP and a USAF officer. Air Force officers assigned to go abroad with the CAP cadets are:

To Brazil—Col. Robert H. Wheat, Professional Education Division, Hq., USAF.
To Belgium—Lt. Col. Frank B. Wagner, Hq., CAP.

To England—Maj. Warren M. Johnston, National Capital Wing, CAP, Washington, D. C.

To Canada—Maj. Roy N. Casbeer, Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz.

To Portugal—Maj. William L. Patterson, Hq., USAF.

To Spain—Maj. Leo C. Alverson, Adams Field, Little Rock, Ark.

To Italy—Maj. John C. Stoltze, F. E. Warren AFB, Wyo.

To Denmark—Maj. Ernest W. Johansen, Martinsburg Municipal Airport, Martinsburg, W. Va.

"We don't need to look forward to war if we are prepared properly to resist aggression."—SECRETARY OF THE NAVY DAN A. KIMBALL.

The Harm is Done. Regardless of how soon steel production is resumed under the settlement, irreparable harm has been done to the defense effort. Eight weeks already have been lost. The fact that the nation is only now hearing the word that plants are slowing down and shutting down, means only that their steel stocks on hand, in transit, and awaiting shipment in the steel mills—what the military calls "in the pipeline"—have been exhausted. What the public is not fully aware of is the fact that when steel production is started there will be another lapse of unproductive time for arms production while these pipelines are being refilled. Because most munitions production is scheduled at virtually plant capacity, this lost time can never be made up. We can only hope that events will not call for the use of equipment lost in this costly shut-down.

In the interest of national security, Congress must devise a workable program for the prevention of stoppages in arms and munitions production. Labor and management, and politics, too, must forego some gains and make some sacrifices in the interest of national survival.

Double Domiciles. Statistics have been released showing that in the ten months prior to February the Air Force increased its strength overseas by almost 44 per cent. During the same period the number of Air Force families going overseas increased by only 17 per cent. The result is that although 40 per cent of all Air Force personnel have dependents, only 11 per cent of those overseas have their dependents with them.

A comparable situation prevails in the other Armed Services, thus forcing thousands to the expense of maintaining two sets of living quarters, one for themselves overseas and one for their families in the States.

For traveling business men this problem is given recognition by permitting them to class their living expenses away from home as a deduction in their income tax returns. Members of Congress have enacted a provision permitting them to increase their deductions. But no such relief has been accorded Service personnel whose over-all income level is considerably below that of business executives or members of Congress.

This is a problem for the Ways and Means Committee of the next Congress, who most certainly should either extend the same privilege to Service members or restore the special military tax exemption formerly allowed.

International Air Cadet Exchange. This week end marks the beginning of the fifth annual International Cadet Exchange sponsored by the Civil Air Patrol, official auxiliary of the U. S. Air Force. Under this program, 110 teen age cadets of the CAP will visit 15 foreign nations and a like number from abroad will be the guests of the United States. Participating in the exchange are Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, England, France, Italy, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

An interesting, and unusual, angle of the program is that it is done without U. S. government funds. The foreign nations pay the expenses of U. S. cadets who are their guests, while the CAP pays the expenses of those visiting here (the program costs CAP about $50,000 of the funds raised by dues from their own senior members).

Because they meet on a common ground of interest in aviation, the visiting youths soon make hosts of friends. The State Department is enthusiastic about the program because of the fine good will created and the growth of a mutual understanding that fosters good relations and peace.

This, of course, is but one phase of the excellent work done by the CAP. "What A Mess"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It's tough for a career officer to figure out things these days, especially when it comes to retirement. First of all, the sponsor of the amendment restricting retirements, Congressman Van Zandt, is quoted as saying the ban is no longer needed. He says it has done its job, and that premature retirement of high-ranking officers is no longer a problem.

So what happens? Congress passed the retirement amendment to the appropriations bill anyway.

Yet, the same Congress did nothing whatsoever about a bill which would suspend provisions of the Officer Personnel Act forcing the "premature" retirement of colonels and general officers.

And from your accounts, the Bureau of the Budget and the White House have been sitting for weeks on an Executive Order which would delay the forced retirement of hundreds of colonels who want to remain in service during the current emergency.

Dislikes AF Promotions

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I cannot refrain from commenting on the sad promotion system the Air Force is currently forcing upon a few thousand worthy officers.

All military success is supposed to be based on leadership. How can the best leaders be had when the promotion system consistently promotes: officers with six years service to grade of Lt. Col., officers that never commanded any organization larger than a four man office, and those who have 104th & Board Actions on their records.

Flight Pay

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Congress has gone home now and those Senators with the slingshots who have been firing away, whenever they can, at flight pay will have other things to do until next January.

Your recent stories giving the Air Force arguments for flight pay have provided some solid answers for those members of Congress who refuse to abide by the recommendations of the Armed Services Committees.

Now, it has been recommended that a new commission be created to study flight pay. What this new group will accomplish that was not done by the Hook Commission is a mystery.

Congressmen would get mighty touchy if three or four times a year efforts were made to cut their pay. The time has come to stop these persistent attacks on flight pay.

Navy Nurses Uniform

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Two years ago, the Navy announced plans to combine the uniform of the Navy Nurse Corps and that of the WAVES—two distinctive uniforms—into a "one for all" ensemble. This plan was not met by an "all for one" greeting, however.

We of the Navy Nurse Corps liked our old style uniform and many of us kept it as long as possible. We aircraft in the Far East because of CAP's volunteer work back home. Another great CAP activity is its aviation education program under which the fundamentals of aviation are being brought into thousands of secondary schools throughout the nation. These are some of the reasons the Air Force has assigned such men as Maj. Gen. Lucus V. Beau, USAF, as its national commander, and why a busy man like General Carl A. Spaatz, USAF-Ret., is willing to give his valuable time and services as the chairman of its governing body, the National Executive Board. Through CAP more than 5,000 private aircraft are available for national emergencies, 30,000 are participating as senior members, and 47,000 young aviation enthusiasts are enrolled as cadets.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—

In an appointment unprecedented in the history of the United States, President Roosevelt this week named Admiral William D. Leahy, USN-Ret., as "chief of staff to the Commander in Chief" of the Army and Navy.

50 Years Ago—

The Stony Point Battlefield Reservation, the scene of "Mad Anthony" Wayne's daring midnight charge on the night of July 15-16, 1779, was formally turned over to the State of New York as a State Park on July 16, and "dedicated to the use of all the people for their recreation and enjoyment and for their patriotic inspiration and education."

85 Years Ago—

For the first time in history, an American Admiral's flag floats in a foreign port. The Franklin, bearing the broad pennant of Admiral Farragut, arrived at Cherbourg on Monday, and the Admiral, and all his officers that could, left as quickly as possible on the straight road for Paris. Arriving at the French capital, they were immediately lionized—above all, of course, the hero of New Orleans and Mobile Bay.

don't like the new one. On the first of this month it became mandatory for us to change to the new one anyway, and now we are all toggled out in something that's a cross between the long-established Nurse Corps and the "new" WAVES.

We've followed orders. We've made the change. But, we still don't like it, and we'd like your readers to know that we don't like it. It may be all right for the WAVES, it may be a good uniform, but nurses still like their own distinctive uniform that lets people know we are nurses.

More USMC Flying Generals

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The possibility that the Marine Corps may select greater numbers of aviators for the rank of brigadier general, as brought out in your article, "Navy-Marine Boards Meet This Month," seems logical on the face of it.

Those of us who serve in Marine aviation, however, have grave doubts that any such windfall will come our way. It appears that we are to be consigned to a minority position forever.

Check the Register of Commissioned Officers of the Marine Corps and you will see that the number of NAs decreases with each succeeding higher rank. For instance, the number in the rank of lieutenant colonel is about one-fourth the total; in the rank of colonel, about one-third; and in the rank of brigadier general, as you mention, about one-sixth.

Press Comment: Conference on Germany

The nation's press seems to be in complete agreement on the proposed four-power conference on Germany. Most of the papers declare that past experience shows how useless such talks would be; that they are merely used by the Soviet as a form of delaying action.

The Oklahoma City Oklahoman says, "A four-power conference on the future of Germany would do nothing toward providing the basis for an amicable settlement," but would result in further delays in the matter of defense commitments to the Adenauer government which would obviously appeal to the Russians.

In the same vein, the Columbus (Ohio) Citizen says, "No one believes Russia will agree to any plan for German unification which the western Allies could accept. But Stalin demands a new meeting whenever the West seems on the point of getting together on some defensive arrangement."

"So," the Birmingham (Ala.) Post-Herald declares, "German rearmament is to be delayed while there is another meeting, or at least talk of another meeting, which will serve the same purpose."

Continuing along these lines, the Pitts- burgh Press notes, "The agenda this time will be limited to the question of free elections, it is understood. But that subject alone can consume months of debate."

Yardley in Baltimore Sun
"It's Just an Old American Custom"

The Des Moines Register says "If the Kremlin consents to the holding of free elections throughout Germany, the Communists will lose their military and political control of the eastern zone. If Stalin rejects the Western proposal, his 'unification' talk will be exposed as meaningless and fraudulent."

The Cleveland (Ohio) News points to a meeting last year in which "deputies debated for 16 weeks but were unable to decide on an agenda for a high-level conference. Russia hasn't changed," the paper notes, "and a meeting now without advance guarantee would be merely a repetition of previous experiences."

The Phoenix Arizona Republic says "the whole shaky structure of European defense is once more in the balance. German unity, as the Russians want it, would take West Germany's war potential away from the West. We will not agree, of course to such a move. But the delay will have been achieved."

Allied Air Hq. Established

IN an impressive building-group considerably larger than that of SHAPE itself General Lauris Norstad, U.S.A.F., this week established the new headquarters of Allied Air Forces, Central Europe. The 40 buildings are dispersed through a 100-acre area, protectively wooded, in the forest of Fontainebleau, not far from the old French royal palace in which General Norstad set up his temporary headquarters in April 1951. They provide living space as well as offices for about 2,000 military and civil personnel attached to the headquarters for the prime air headquarters in Europe, now growing perceptibly.

Up to date there have been 100 air exercises, employing the forces of one or more Allies, directed from Central Sector headquarters. Less conspicuous, but in a sense more important, have been the patient efforts to speed up the construction of bases and strips from which air squadrons can operate. Very large progress in this respect has been made now, and the projected network of 150 bases, in ten NATO countries, is at last taking form. To General Norstad's personal achievement Rene Pleven, France's Minister of Defense, in his dedicatory remarks paid warm tribute and added, significantly, mention of the "perspective that the application of new inventions spreads before us."

With numerous air exercises scheduled for the late summer and autumn, plans are rapidly working out for the impressive naval exercise MAINBRACE, involving surface and air forces of both SACEUR and SACLAN, which is scheduled for the North Sea during September. The land exercises in western Europe this year are expected to reach their height, not in a single large maneuver but in a series of well integrated corps exercises during September. They will involve not merely the existing British and American corps, but some temporary groupings of French and Benelux divisions in new army corps under shifting commands, designed to demonstrate the limitless flexibility of NATO field organization now headed by General Ridgway.

The American air build-up in Europe has been made possible to a considerable extent by the infusion of Air National Guard units, now settled in entirely new bases which are far from complete and which, accordingly, provide something of a test for the American personnel. Reports indicate that the three groups of Air Guardsmen are adapting themselves easily to a not too cheering environment and making the best of it.

The West Berlin Reds have set Sunday, 3 August, as the date for a "youth rally," in defiance of the West Berlin government's wish that Red youth groups be banned, and in open defiance also of the imperturbable Mayor Reuter, who stands like a rock against Communism in his section of the old German capital. The project must be recognized as dangerous, but chiefly to the Red youth-leaders. The section designated for the rally is in the British sector, far from the Russian-zone, and it is a fair guess that the 12,000 Allied troops in Berlin, plus the West Berlin police, will be able to handle the situation, but not without a fight.

Informal negotiations among officers from the general staff of Greece, Turkey, and Yugoslavia appear to herald a formal meeting of the three for consideration of the common defense and what amounts to an integration of Near East forces in sympathy with the West but just outside the NATO walls. It is of interest that the initiative in these meetings is that of Yugoslavia, which is sending its political delegation to Greece this month for a discussion of political cooperation. In the area of technology, Yugoslavia is sending a group of young workers to Switzerland for a six months training in engineering, while a group of West European technologists go to Yugoslavia for direct instruction of factory workers. This is an enterprise of the United Nations' International Labor Organization.

Truce Optimism Seems Unfounded

THE major development in the Korean truce talks hoped for in some quarters this week failed to materialize. After a four-day recess, taken at the request of the Communists, the executive sessions of the Panmunjom armistice conference were resumed, but there were no announcements of encouraging progress. When the recess was taken, apparently to give the Reds an opportunity to seek instructions from Peiping or Moscow, or both, there was some expectation that a new proposal might be advanced which might break the deadlock. The recess in truce negotiations, coupled with the cancellation of steamship reservations to Russia by Jacob Malik, Soviet delegate to the United Nations at New York, gave rise to speculation that a break in the year-long truce discussions was pending.

There seems to have been no warrant for such optimism. There was nothing made public to indicate that the Reds were prepared to submit any new proposals for ending hostilities, or that they had moved any closer to acceptance of the final Allied offer concerning voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war. There were rumors that the Communists were about to modify materially their demands for the forcible return to their control of all Red prisoners held by the Allies, regardless of their desires, and that there was only a difference of a few thousand in the numbers sought by the Communists for return to their lines and in those the Allies had agreed to exchange. Evidently there was no substance to such reports, and the attitude of the Communists appears to be as adamant as ever.

It was announced that the Communist delegation this week sought information concerning 610 Red prisoners, not included on official rosters previously exchanged. The Reds also accused the Allies of using prisoners as spies, claiming that Communist captives of the United Nations forces had been parachuted behind the lines to act as Allied intelligence agents. General Nam Il, senior Communist delegate at truce conference, sent a letter to the United Nations representatives, declaring that former prisoners of the Allies had been captured behind the lines and had confessed that they had been compelled to serve as spies.

THE OFFICIAL PEIPING RADIO this week charged that United Nations delegates during the secret sessions of the Panmunjom conference had shown no desire for a fair and reasonable settlement of the problem of exchange of war prisoners. It accused the Americans of trying to wreck the conference in order to prolong the war. On the other hand, Brig. Gen. William Nuckols, USAF, spokesman for the Allied truce delegation, said the Communists regarded every concession as an evidence of weakness, and immediately demanded more. He said they showed no indication of trying to settle the controversy.

General Mark W. Clark, USA, Commander-in-Chief of Allied forces, was quoted this week in a copyrighted interview in the U. S. News and World Report as saying that the Reds have practically doubled their strength on the ground and in the air during the year that the truce talks have been in progress, but still lack the capability of mounting a sustained offensive in Korea. He said that the Communists have plenty of supplies, but are incapable of moving them in the face of Allied air attacks. At the same time, the United Nations forces, without adding to their numerical strength, have been trained intensively, and have improved their defenses to meet any eventuality.

The general said the Reds have increased their ground strength from half a million to nearly a million, and their air power from 1,000 to 2,000 planes, about half of them jets. Nevertheless, he said the Communists could not sustain a major offensive for more than two or three weeks. He had warm praise for the South Koreans serving as a part of the Eighth Army in Korea. He said their units are now "hard-hitting, efficient divisions."

IN INDO-CHINA Communist-led rebels captured two Vietnam outposts southwest of Saigon, taking 24 prisoners, according to an official French communique. In northern Vietnam native troops routed attacking Reds, attempting to take a fortified village. Raiding Communist guerrillas in the rubber plantation country, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, were driven off, with French planes strafing the retreating rebels.

On the other side of the world explosive political upheavals this week replaced the governments of Egypt and Iran. In a bloodless military coup in Egypt the army, led by Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib Bey, a thrice-wounded national hero of the war with Israel, moved swiftly at night to seize control. He proclaimed himself commander-in-chief of the army, and demanded the replacement of Prime Minister Hilaly Pasha, who had held office only one day, by Aly Maher Pasha, a former premier. King Farouk acceded to the demand. The coup was generally interpreted as the reaction of the army against prevalent intrigue and corruption, and Washington authorities expect no change in Egyptian foreign policy.

In Iran, Premier Ahmed Qavam, regarded as pro-British, was forced to resign after only two days in office, and was succeeded by his predecessor, Mohammed Mossadegh, long a violent leader of the anti-British faction, and as premier arbitrarily seized the rich British-owned properties of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The governmental upheaval of this week was caused by a rash of riots that swept Tehran following the announcement of Qavam that he would try to reach an amicable settlement of the impasse with Great Britain resulting from the oil seizures. When Qavam was appointed premier there was considerable hope that this difficulty would be satisfactorily resolved. However, with the return of Mossadegh to power the prospect of an early settlement is bleak. The latest change in the Iranian government followed bloody riots in which a score of demonstrators were killed by soldiers and police and many others were wounded. Presumably Qavam's resignation followed failure to secure parliamentary approval of stern measures to suppress the uprisings. The outlawed Tudeh Communist party joined the extreme nationalists in promoting the disturbances, which were definitely anti-American as well as anti-British.

THE AGING MOSSADEGH won another victory this week at The Hague, where the World Court decided by a vote of nine to five that it had no authority to settle the dispute between Great Britain and Iran, arising out of the oil nationalization. In this decision the court sustained the contention of Iran, and turned down the appeal of the British. With no settlement of the oil controversy in sight the Iranian government is faced with bankruptcy and economic collapse, because of the lack of funds formerly derived from oil royalties, which provided a very large share of the public revenue.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Fate of Officers in B-36 Protest—With the selection this week of Capt. John H. Sides for promotion to rear admiral, it is interesting to note that eight of the 18 active duty Navy and Marine Corps officers who testified during the 1949 Congressional inquiry into the B-36 program have now either been promoted or selected for promotion.

Two officers who were commanders when they testified have since been promoted to captain. They are: Capt. A. B. Metsger, now on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics, and Capt. Eugene Tatom, assigned to Task Group 132-3.

Three who were captains at the time, have been promoted to rear admiral or selected for that rank. They are: Captain Sides, Office, Chief of Naval Operations; Rear Adm. A. A. Burke, Director of the Navy's Strategic Plans Division; and Rear Adm. F. M. Trapnell, currently in the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital, but previously assigned as Navy Deputy Commander, Sandia Base, Albuquerque, N. M.

Two flag officers have been promoted to higher flag ranks: Vice Adm. R. B. Carney, to Admiral, Commander in Chief of Allied Forces in Southern Europe; and Rear Adm. R. A. Ofstie, to Vice Admiral, Commander, First Fleet.

One Marine officer who testified, Brig. Gen. V. E. Megee, has since been promoted to Maj. Gen. and is currently assigned as Commanding General, Air, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Three junior officers who have not been up for promotion are Commanders W. N. Leonard and W. I. Martin, and Lt. Comdr. E. W. Harrison. Commander Leonard is presently serving on the Weapons Systems Evaluations Group, Office of Secretary of Defense; Commander Martin in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations; and Commander Harrison is assigned to Air Force, Pacific Fleet.

A fourth officer who has not been up for promotion, Capt. J. S. Thach, is serving in the Office of the Secretary of the Navy for Air.

Of the remaining Navy and Marine Corps active duty officers who testified for the Navy, Admiral A. W. Radford, Commander in Chief, Pacific, has twice been bypassed in the selection of a Chief of Naval Operations; Admiral Louis E. Denfeld was ousted as CNO and retired; Admirals W. H. P. Blandy and Thomas C. Kincaid have been retired; Admiral Richard L. Conolly reverted to three-star rank and is currently serving as President of the Naval War College; and General C. B. Cates, former Marine Commandant, reverted to the rank of Lt. Gen. and is serving as Commandant, Marine Corps Schools.

Pilots Wear Armor—The new Marine Corps body armor has moved from the front lines on the ground to the front lines in the air. Pilots and observers of the 1st Marine Air Wing, after listening to reports about the effectiveness of the armor, started wearing the jackets on their low level observation flights over enemy positions. Although many of the observation planes (from Marine Observation Squadron Six) have been shot up by AA and small arms fire, none of the observers has been wounded since they started wearing the armored vests.

Unified Effort—An Army unit attached to the Fifth Air Force, working for the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, in collaboration with a Navy Seabee battalion, represents enough combined arms to move a mountain, which it did.

The unit is the 1903d Aviation Engineering Company, whose job, according to 2d Lt. George Reed, a platoon leader, is "to build, maintain, and defend U.S. airfields overseas and at home." "Overseas" presently means Korea.

The "mountain," in reality a large hill, was situated in the middle of a sprawling Marine Corps airfield. Its possibilities as a source of supply for much needed fill was quickly recognized by engineers. Besides, it presented a hazard for Marine pilots and planes taking off on combat missions. In about six weeks, the engineers, utilizing Korean laborers and Marine and Navy equipment, moved close to 200,000 cubic yards of earth. Lt. Reed said "in some places we had to fill up to 50 feet."

Soon after a section of the runway was extended, a plane in difficulty overshot and stopped on the new section.

"If that new section hadn't been there," Reed said, "the plane would have dropped off into a 40 foot gully. We believe that if we can save one pilot and plane our work has been worth it."

A former National Guard outfit in Colorado, the unit was recalled to duty in October, 1950, and has been in Korea since November, 1951. It is commanded by Capt. Robert Steimel of St. Louis. Its executive officers is 1st Lt. Robert A. Elvin of Sibley, Iowa.

Cost of An Airman—The cost of an Air Force recruit for pay, maintenance, travel and training averages $5,000 a year for the first year of service, according to a recent report made to Congress. However, the average cost for the fourth year of service is $4,000 while the over-all average is put at $3,161, a decrease from 1951 when the figure was $3,205.

AF Pilot Strength—The Air Force will have 53,500 pilots during the current fiscal year. This is a 2 per cent increase over last year's total, although there will be a 20 per cent increase in combat units.

General Macon To Retire—Maj. Gen. Robert C. Macon, USA, Deputy Chief of Army Field Forces and wartime commander of the 83d Division in Europe, will retire at the end of this month after more than 35 years of Army Service. His successor has not been announced.

During World War II, in the invasion of North Africa, General Macon commanded the 7th Infantry Regiment of the 3d Division. Named commander of the 83d Infantry in 1944, he led the division through five European campaigns. The 83d was the first to reach the Rhine River in the advance through Europe.

After the war, General Macon was appointed military attache to Russia.

Carries On Marine Tradition—A new "boot" now in training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., is the grandson of a former Marine Commandant. He is Private George G. Vest, whose grandfather, Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, was Commandant in 1929-30. Vest's father is Capt. John P. W. Vest, USN, and he also has an older brother serving as a lieutenant in the Marines. A graduate of Brown University, young Vest enlisted in the Corps on 3 June at Boston.

Heads College Band—CWO M. A. Quinto, U. S. Army Bandleader retired, has accepted a position as Director of the College of William and Mary Band, Williamsburg, Va., effective 1 Sept. Mr. Quinto was formerly Bandmaster 4th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry, 16th Coast Artillery, 10th Coast Artillery, 2d Bombardment Group, Langley Field, Va., 2d Coast Artillery, Fort Monroe, Va., 6th Infantry, 13th Armored (Cavalry) Regt., and 1st Armored Division bands.

Timely Weather Tips—The Army picked a timely moment this week to release information concerning a booklet on "Hot Tips For Desert Living," which is being issued to Quartermaster Corps troops and civilian technicians testing clothing and equipment in the desert near the Yuma, Ariz., Test Station.

The Army released its announcement on 23 July at a time when official Weather Bureau instruments at the National Airport, close by the Pentagon, recorded 98 degrees.

The desert is like the sea, according to the booklet, in that sun-light is reflected off the surface and can give a man a sunburn even when he is in the shade. Ten minutes exposure to the desert sun at a time is recommended before a man is really brown, the Army said.

Advising newcomers to the desert to "sweat it out with a grain of salt," the booklet states: "When you arrive in the desert during the hot season, your body processes are not adjusted to the heat, so plenty of rest, light exercise, adequate food, and above all, adequate water and salt are required. After a week or ten days you will sweat more efficiently and lose less salt. When this takes place, a little extra salt on your food will usually take care of your requirements."

The Army states that a kind of false thirst occurs during this period of adjustment due to the drying of the inside of the mouth and nose. "Instead of gulping great quantities of water, which may only make you vomit," the booklet states, "sip water frequently, sloshing it around in your mouth. Your lips will dry and crack unless you use an oily cream on them often, preferably one containing lanolin."

The booklet instructs troops in proper wear of the new experimental hot-dry uniform recently developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps. This uniform is being tested in desert operations this summer in comparison with standard light-weight uniforms.

"Hot Tips For Desert Living" contains the same type of practical information as an earlier Army publication, "Cold Facts For Keeping Warm," which gave detailed advice on how to live in extreme cold conditions and the proper wear of the winter uniform. This latter pamphlet has been used by troops in Korea during the past two winters.

Both publications are illustrated and are pocket-size for easy carrying by troops.

Jump Pay—The Comptroller General has ruled that parachute pay cannot be made to an officer unless he is specifically assigned to parachute duty. The decision was made in the case of Capt. Louis H. Button, 6400 ASU, Recruiting Service, Sixth Army, who was transferred from a parachute unit to a unit which was not airborne and whose duties were not designated by competent authority as parachute duty. The decision said he was not entitled to additional pay for parachute duty for any part of the period he was not assigned or attached to a parachute unit, even though he may have made a jump within three months prior to this transfer from the parachute unit.

ELMENDORF AFB, ALASKA. The Officers' Wives Club is striving to be an organization known to all as a helping hand for military services of the North Country. One outstanding project is meeting dependent planes from State-side. Tired after a long journey, especially if accompanied by small children, many found when they had debarked that there was no one to meet them since for one reason or another the husband had not been notified. There were also those who had a long wait until the plane left for Ladd AFB.

Mrs. Agee presented this problem to the council of the Officers' Wives Club, under the guidance of Lt. Col. J. B. Grace, this committee consisting of a chairman, Mrs. William D. Old, and two co-chairmen, Mrs. Victor L. Anderson and Mrs. Thomas H. Beeson, and 30 committee members became active. Each Wednesday evening dependents arrive from 7 o'clock in the evening until 3 o'clock in the morning, thus enabling mothers of small children, who cannot always share actively in the work of the Officers' Wives Club, during the day, to take part. Even the officers come in on this committee for they baby-sit while their wives are on duty.

S. Army TC Vessel, the FS 221. Under the guidance of the ship's master, Capt. Mortimer H. Cobb, TC.

the future TC Officers were instructed in the workings of the FS Vessel and given practical experience in the problems of cargo handling and ship-to-shore loading.

Maj. Lewis C. Spinney, TC, Acting PMS&T of the John Carroll Unit accompanied the cadets on the cruise.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker, Commandant of the 11th Naval District, who soon goes to the retired list, and Mrs. Baker were honored at a luncheon on 17 July. The courtesy took place in the Balboa Park Club and was hosted by San Diego City and County officials and the local Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Baker in an attractive dark blue suit with a corsage of orchids, was seated with her husband at the speaker's table. Here a huge copper ship's bell and an attractive arrangement of chaise longue and crimson gladioli formed the centerpiece. Suggestive of navy life was the background decoration, anchor and chains, and round white life preservers against the vivid colors of multiple signal flags.

A Marine Corps Recruit Depot orchestra played during the luncheon and Corp. Thos. Datz, USMC, hero of the Starlight Opera, "The Student Prince," sang the honorees' favorite songs. Seven hundred guests participated in this impressive affair which stressed the gratitude of civic leaders for the excellent cooperation afforded them by Adm. Baker during his three year tour of duty in the city. The guest list included distinguished representatives from the various services and visitors from neighboring old Mexico.

As a token of the esteem in which both of them held, Graydon Hoffman, chairman of the Chamber's National Defense Committee, presented Mrs. Baker with a bouquet of red roses and to Adm. Baker, who leaves shortly for a European trip, a certificate for a set of matched luggage.

San Diegans were delighted to learn that after an extended trip the Bakers will return to make their home in San Diego, Adm. Baker's plans for an association with Solar Aircraft Co. having been recently announced.

FT. BELVOIR, VA. The members of the Garden Club of which Mrs. Stanley Scott, wife of the Commanding General, is honorary president, have been learning to plant azaleas from slips, under the direction of Mrs. Albert Lieber. This is being done as a part of the post beautification program.

Skidmore, Director of the Waterways Experiment Station since 1950, who will enter the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

Ship Construction

versions will be accomplished at naval shipyards during periods when they would normally be in the shipyards for overhaul work.

Ships Deleted

The Navy originally had asked Congress for a larger shipbuilding program for 1953 but substantial parts of it were eliminated. The second Forrestal-class carrier was restored only upon condition that funds for its construction would be offset by the deletion of other ships in the program.

Ships thus dropped from the program by the Navy included:

- 1 aircraft carrier, escort
- 1 destroyer
- 1 submarine, attack
- 1 radar picket submarine
- 3 landing ships, dock, and 1 ocean escort

The second 59,900-ton carrier will be similar to the Forrestal, except for changes in the ship's machinery, which has undergone some design improvements since machinery for the Forrestal was ordered. The Navy said, "These improvements will produce somewhat higher speeds."

The carrier is expected to be completed in about three and one-half years, although the Navy said "construction time could be accelerated considerably if operational needs required." It will cost an estimated $209,700,000, which is $8,300,000 less than the estimated cost of the Forrestal.

Second A-Sub

Assignment of the second nuclear-powered submarine to the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corporation means that both A-subs will be built at Groton, where work on the first one was started on 14 June.

The second A-sub will be of the same general design as the Nautilus but will have a differently designed power plant developed by the Knolls Atomic Laboratory of the General Electric Company under contract to the AEC. The sub will cost $32,700,000 as compared with $29,000,000 for the Nautilus. Neither cost includes the nuclear portions of the plants to power the two vessels.

Secretary Kimball said construction of the A-subs was assigned to General Dynamics because of that concern's unique design experience in this field. He said, "The experience gained by the firm in building the first nuclear submarine will result in earlier completion of the second."

Lt. Col. Edmund F. Driscoll, 34, USA, died in Baghdad, Iraq, of Bulbar Polymyositis on 7 June 1952.

Colonel Driscoll, after having graduated from Malverne, N. Y. High School in 1936 and Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., in 1940, entered military service on 1 August 1940.

His service for the period 1940 through 1945 was with the 16th Infantry Regiment of the First Infantry Division in which he served as Regimental Personnel Adjutant, Company Commander, Battalion Executive Officer, Battalion Commander and finally as Regimental Executive Officer. His World War II record was outstanding. He made D-Day assault landings in Oran, North Africa; in Gela, Sicily; on Omaha Beach in Normandy and participated in a total of eight campaigns which, in addition to the assault landings, included Tunisia, Northern France, The Ardennes, The Rhineland, and Central Europe.

He was wounded three times and in addition to three Purple Hearts, his U. S. decorations and awards consisted of The Distinguished Service Cross, The Silver Star Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and three Oak Leaf Clusters, The Combat Infantry Badge, The Distinguished Unit Badge with two Oak Leaf Clusters, The European, African, Middle Eastern Campaign Medal with Bronze Arrowhead and eight Campaign Stars, The American Theater Medal, The American Defense Service Medal, The Occupation of Germany Medal, The Victory Medal, and six overseas service bars representing continuous service overseas from July 1942 to November 1945.

After World War II, Colonel Driscoll returned to the United States where he was assigned to Intelligence duties with station at Fort Jay, N. Y. In December 1949 he was appointed Army Attaché to the U. S. Legation in Baghdad, Iraq, and at the time he was stricken he was preparing to return to the United States where he was assigned as a student at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The Requiem Mass was held in the Fort Myer Chapel on 17 June 1952 and interment followed in Arlington National Cemetery.

Colonel Driscoll is survived by his widow, Marie; a son, Edmund, 3; daughters, Marie Ruth, 9, Elizabeth Ann, 6, and Kathleen, 3 months, who reside at 421 Cedar St. W. Hempstead, Long Island, New York, as well as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Driscoll of Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y., a brother, Thomas, and sister, Mrs. J. H. Pellerin.

Col. Leslie E. Babcock, USA-Ret.

Colonel Leslie Edwards Babcock, U.S.A., Retired, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in New Bern, N. C., on 14 July. He was 60 years of age.

Colonel Babcock was born in New Haven, Conn., 21 September, 1891, the son of Robert A. and Emma Edwards Babcock. He was graduated from Morgan School, Clinton, Conn., in 1910. He entered Brown University in 1911, transferring to Yale University the following year. He received the B. A. degree from Yale College in 1916. He was a member of the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

When the Yale Battery was formed to augment the Connecticut National Guard in the Mexican uprising in May 1916, he enlisted and served throughout that troubled period on the Mexican Border, following which he was discharged in August 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in Field Artillery, U. S. A., and served during his entire 34 year career in that arm of the service. He is the author of a text book, "Elements of Field Artillery," written for use in his own classes while assistant professor of Military Science and Tactics at Princeton University, widely used by other military schools and colleges.

Being stationed at Fort Myer, Va., immediately after returning from duty overseas in World War I, he found it possible, after duty hours, to resume the study of law begun while an undergraduate at Yale. He received the LL. B. degree at Georgetown University in June 1920.

In 1941, Colonel Babcock was detailed to the Office of the Inspector General and served in that Department until 1949. He terminated his long service as Commanding Officer of Camp Pickett, Va., which he reactivated during the two years he was in command there. He retired on 30 September 1951.

Since retirement Colonel Babcock has resided in New Bern, N. C., where he is interred in the National Cemetery. The honor guard for his military funeral was composed entirely of men who served under him, and an officer also of his former command at Camp Pickett.

Colonel Babcock is survived by his widow, Estelle Dillon Babcock, two sons, Lt. Leslie E. Babcock, Jr., U.S.A., Retired, of Tarboro, N. C., Lt. Robert A. Babcock, III, U.S.A., of Ft. Sill, Okla., a sister, Mrs. R. F. Neuberth and a brother, Robert A. Babcock, II, both of New Haven, Conn.

Col. Frank Kirby Chapin, USA-Ret.

Funeral services for Col. Frank Kirby Chapin, USA-Ret., who died at the Elkton, Md. Hospital, on 13 July, were conducted from his home at Georgetown, Md., on the Sassafras River on Maryland's Eastern Shore. Interment was at the family plot in the Georgetown Cemetery. He was 68 years old.

Colonel Chapin was born in Buffalo, N. Y., the son of the late General William H. Chapin and Mrs. Chapin. After graduating first in his class at St. John's Military Academy at Manlius, N. Y., in 1905, he was assigned to the 3d Cavalry Regiment in the Philippine Islands. Later, he fought with General Pershing in the Mexican Campaign, and during World War I, Colonel Chapin was decorated for bravery while participating in the Chateau-Thierry and Soissons campaigns, in which he sustained gas and shell-shock injuries. Upon his return to the United States, he was assigned to the War Plans Division of the General Staff, following which he served in various administrative positions. At the outbreak of World War II, Colonel Chapin was made Commanding Officer of Pine Camp, N. Y. In 1942, he was assigned as Commanding Officer at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., from which post he was retired from active duty, in January 1944, for physical disability, after 37 years of service. Since that time, he had made his home in Georgetown, where he was a member of the Episcopal Church and a 32d Degree Mason.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Jervis Chapin of Georgetown, his daughter, Mrs. Mary Kirby Chapin Poe, wife of Lt. Donald T. Poe, USN, of Norfolk, Va., and his sister, Mrs. N. K. B. Patch of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Celia Terry

Friends of Capt. Dudley K. Terry, USA, will be saddened to learn of the tragedy that befell him and his family last week, upon their recent return from three years in Germany. The car in which they were driving en route to Kemper, Tex., to visit Captain Terry's parents, was demolished by a gravel truck, near Milan, Tenn., on 17 July, instantly killing Mrs. Celia Terry, 30, Captain Terry's wife. Their four-months-old daughter, Deborah, died later at the Milan Hospital.

In the meantime, Captain Terry is hospitalized with injuries at the U. S. Army Hospital at Ft. Campbell, Ky., together with his three-year-old son, who was also critically injured.

Col. Alfred Wainwright Bloor, USA-Ret.

Col. Alfred Wainwright Bloor, USA-Ret., died on 3 July, at the Seton Hospital, Austin, Tex.

Born in Pittsburgh, Colonel Bloor moved with his parents, when he was still very young, to Austin, and it was there in 1904 that he received his law degree at the University of Texas, and there that he later practiced law until he was called into Federal service as a lieutenant colonel in the Texas National Guard in 1916. From then until 1940, when he was retired, Colonel Bloor was on continuous active duty. His first military training, however, was at Texas A.&M. College, from which he was graduated in 1895, enlisting in the famous Governor's Guard of the Texas National Guard as a sergeant. This unit became Co. L of the First Texas Infantry, and Colonel Bloor served with it as a non-commissioned officer during the Spanish-American War. In World War I, he was named a colonel of Infantry with the Texas National Guard, when he organized and trained the 142d Infantry of the 36th Division at Camp Bowie, and with which he served through the War in France. Following World War I, Colonel Bloor entered the Regular Army. His service included assignments as Military Attaché to Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, and later with the War Department General Staff. He was graduated from the Command and General Staff College and from the Army War College, and he held a number of decorations from his own and other governments.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucille Manor Bloor of Austin, and one brother, Mr. Bert H. Bloor.

Burial was at Oakwood Cemetery, Austin.

M/Sgt. Norman R. Durfee, USA

M/Sgt Norman R. Durfee, USA, died at the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Dix, N. J., on 19 June, of injuries suffered in a hand grenade explosion.

A veteran of 17 years' active service, Sergeant Durfee, who was 34 years old, served in the European theater during World War II, and he had returned to the United States only last April from 16 months of duty in Korea. He held the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Celeste Armstrong Durfee, whose address is, c/o 60th Ex. Ord Disp. Sq., 1262d ASU, Ft. Dix; a daughter, Rosalyn Miriam Durfee; and two brothers and a sister.

Burial was at Pocomet Hill Cemetery, Tiverton, R. I.

War In Korea

Heavy Carriers Bon Homme Richard and Princeton was the big Chosen No. 2 power house in northeastern Korea, which was again hit and gutted. Rail cars and boats in this vicinity were destroyed.

Northeast of Hungnam on the east coast other carrier planes cut rails in numerous places. Several buildings between Hungnam and Tachon were destroyed or damaged in air attacks by Navy pilots.

Marine planes from the U.S. Light Carrier Bataan off the west coast were likewise hampered by poor weather and low visibility, but they made a number of strikes on enemy installations. Five power stations, a radio center, several boats, and numerous buildings were destroyed or damaged. Many enemy troop casualties were inflicted.

Land-based warplanes of the U.S. Far East Air Force and attached units concentrated many close support missions to aid ground troops in their fierce battle to hold the high ground on Old Baldy, west of Chorwon. Low-hanging cloud layers and thunder showers curtailed to a considerable extent the air strikes during the week. An unusually heavy attack was made late this week by 200 planes on the Red supply base at Osan, near Wonsan on the east coast. Storage buildings, barracks and fuel and ammunition dumps were destroyed.

In close air support attacks along the battle front in the western sector American F-80 Shooting Star jets and Marine aircraft accounted for numerous enemy casualties, destroyed many bunkers, and set fire to several buildings. B-26 light bombers and shore-based Marine planes made night attacks on enemy front lines.

Strike at Convoy

Shooting Stars, Mustangs, and Marine planes attacked a Red truck convoy southeast of Sariwon, destroying several vehicles. Buildings were set fire near Sepo, and other storage structures were leveled near Pungsan. In the same region several other buildings and some boats were damaged. An ammunition dump and fuel storage area, near Pyongyang were destroyed by Allied fighter-bombers.

American B-29 medium bombers dropped high explosives at night on front-line enemy positions, and on a marshalling yard on the north central rail route leading from Manchuria.

The Defense Department this week announced that American battle casualties for the period of the Korean war from its inception more than two years ago to include notifications to next of kin through 18 July 1952, total 113,363. Of these 19,925 were killed or died of wounds; 82,933 wounded in action, including 1,857 who subsequently died; and 12,564 missing in action, including 202 known to have died, 1,385 who have returned to military control, and 1,460 captured by the enemy, leaving 9,517 currently missing.

Of the total casualties 91,453 were sustained by the Army, 1,433 by the Navy, 19,265 by the Marine Corps, and 1,212 by the Air Force.

Travel Time Limit

New time limits involving the rights of retired members of the uniformed services to travel and transportation allowances in connection with their retirement are announced by the Department of Defense.

Under new regulations, retired personnel and their dependents must complete travel to the place they select as home and shipment of their household effects must have begun by 27 April, 1953 or within one year after the date of retirement, whichever is later.

A statement of the Per Diem Travel and Transportation Allowance Committee of the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force concerning the change in time limits follows:

"The promulgation of Presidential Proclamation 2974, dated April 28, 1952, makes it necessary that the Joint Travel Regulations be amended to return to the peacetime provision of requiring that travel of retired personnel to the place they select as their home for the purpose of receiving payment of mileage, transportation of dependents, and transportation of household goods must be completed within one year from date of retirement.

"It has been a principle of long standing that normally such travel should be performed within one year from date of retirement in order to have been performed within a reasonable period. In July 1945, the Comptroller General of the United States, in recognition of the crowded conditions obtaining in many parts of the United States making the selection of a home and travel thereto impracticable, relaxed this principle to allow deferment of such travel to a date not later than one year after date of retirement or one year after termination of the war, whichever is later.

"Presidential Proclamation 2974 terminated the war, for these purposes, effective April 28, 1952. Therefore, those members who are retired; transferred to the Fleet Reserve, or transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve on or before April 28, 1952 must select their home and perform travel thereto on or before April 27, 1953 in order to be entitled to payment of mileage. Likewise, dependents must also perform travel thereto and household goods must be turned over to a transportation officer or to a carrier for shipment on or before April 27, 1953 in order to secure transportation for dependents and household goods at government expense.

"Members being retired, transferred to the Fleet Reserve, or transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve after April 28, 1952 will be required to perform the travel to their selected home, transport their dependents thereto, and turn their household goods over to a transportation officer or to a carrier for shipment within one year from date of retirement in order to be entitled to the appropriate travel and transportation allowances prescribed by the Joint Travel Regulations."

Chemical Corps in FEC

mines that may range in size from a one-gallon can to a fifty-five-gallon drum, each armed with trip wire, burster, and igniter; and constructed to explode splattering, flaming gasoline in all directions, trapping and illuminating enemy forces attempting to penetrate our lines. The methods of employing napalm are many, and its use is limited only by the imagination of the individual.

Another facet of Far Eastern operations has been the use of smoke to screen our activities and to blind the enemy. Because of the enemy's limited air operations against vital rear area installations in Korea, smoke screening has been used relatively little as a passive air defense measure; however, vital areas are protected by smoke generator companies in readiness. Screening has been accomplished in support of numerous tactical operations in Korea, denying the enemy observation of wire-laying operations, movement of troops and equipment along exposed routes and river crossings, and bridging operations. These operations take place under enemy fire, justifying the classification of the smoke generator companies as combat troops.

Chemical Mortar Bn.

A third facet of the war is the utilization of the 4.2-inch chemical mortar battalion. Chemical Corps mortar troops have, since their arrival in Korea, been continuously in the lines, giving heavy weapon support to all units to which they have been attached. As Army troops it has often been their lot to support United Nations units not ordinarily equipped with heavy mortars or a large amount of artillery. The 4.2-inch mortar early became a familiar sight in support of British Commonwealth Forces, as well as other units. This serving in combat with soldiers from different lands has been excellent training as well as educational and enlightening to the mortar men.

In yet another phase Chemical Corps personnel have assisted and supervised the field testing of new items of equipment developed in the ZI, and sent to Korea for a practical test under combat conditions. These equipment tests are intensive, and are guaranteed to determine and reveal possible flaws in mechanism and operation before the item is standardized and contracts are let for its mass production. In addition to new developments from the ZI, various items have been improvised locally, created to meet a temporary need, or even to fill a long felt requirement. These items, as they prove their value, are reported to Department of Army research and development agencies for further test and development.

Chemical Intelligence

Chemical technical intelligence teams, charged with the mission of securing chemical intelligence of enemy developments, are continually active in operations across the front, examining captured enemy equipment, interrogating prisoners of war, and investigating suspicious or unusual circumstances. Chemical technical intelligence personnel are a familiar sight to front line infantrymen. Assisting these intelligence teams to evaluate their findings is a chemical laboratory detachment equipped to furnish theater-wide laboratory services.

Training is an aspect of the Corps' mission in the Far East in which everyone participates, for it embraces all military and civilian persons with the Armed Forces. Training is a never-ending process due to the rapid turnover of personnel arriving within and departing from the theater. The Far East Command Chemical School, functioning for the purpose of training unit CBR (chemical, biological, and radiological) defense personnel, has been in operation for almost one year during which it has graduated many thousands of unit CBR commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Graduates of the school are assigned to units throughout the command, where they participate and assist in unit training programs. These graduates both officers and enlisted men, are considered qualified to advise their unit commanders in all phases of CBR defense. Civilian personnel with the Armed Forces have, of necessity, received

Aircraft Year Book

The 1951 edition of the "Aircraft Year Book," an official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association of America, was released this week—the thirty-second annual edition of a valuable series recording the progress of American aviation over the years.

The volume contains a review of the events and developments in military and civil aviation, a directory of aircraft, executives, statistics, chronology and agencies in United States aviation, and an encyclopedia of little-known facts, historical side lights and famous quotes out of the past.

An interesting feature is its review of aircraft in production during 1951 with detailed descriptions, photographs and three-view drawings. Another is the listing of brief biographies of 1,200 present-day aviation personalities.

The book was compiled by an editorial staff from Aero Digest consisting of Fred Hamlin, editor and publisher, formerly director of information CAA; Arthur Clawson, managing editor, a wartime B-17 pilot; Eleanor Thayer, associate editor; and Robert McLaren, technical editor, formerly aeronautical engineer with numerous aircraft companies and technical magazines.

The Year Book is published by the Lincoln Press, Inc., 511 Eleventh Street NW, Washington 4, D. C., at $6.00 a copy.

Adm. Baker Joins Firm

Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker, USN, Commandant of Eleventh Naval District, upon retirement 1 Aug. with the rank of vice admiral, will join Solar Aircraft Co. as consultant to the president, it is announced by Edmund T. Price, Solar president and general manager.

As his first assignment, Admiral Baker will accompany Mr. Price on an extensive European tour in connection with Solar's international markets. Admiral Baker's major work with Solar will be as consultant and aide in the field of community relations. The admiral, who has been in command of the Eleventh Naval District since February 1949, plans to live in La Jolla after his retirement from the Navy.

a special course of instruction in CBR defense that has consisted of indoctrination lectures. Other United Nations personnel are also being assisted to meet the necessary training requirements, and to prepare CBR defense plans.

Planning has been and will continue to be a large factor in the success of the mission of all forces in the Far East Command. The Chemical Corps is constantly preparing plans to meet possible employment of CBR warfare should it be initiated.

Proper planning has also played a major part in economically supplying forces in the Far East. Supplies and equipment have been obtained from several sources. The primary source is of course the zone of interior, and the alternate source—procurement in Japan; however, the Korean operation has been supported to an amazing degree by a rehabilitation program which has taken equipment from World War II, and recovered equipment from the battlefield, serviced it, and returned it to using forces. This rehabilitation program, common to all the services in the Far East, is an extremely wise economy measure, operating to the benefit of the nation and the relief of the taxpayer. Supply, maintenance, and service organizations are constantly active throughout the Far East in the vigorous support of all troops, and especially those fighting in Korea.

The Chemical Corps in the Far East is strengthening the defense, watching and waiting, and planning and preparing; keeping decontamination units trained by performing secondary and auxiliary missions; keeping smoke units constantly operational; assisting to destroy the enemy with fire and flame; maintaining mortar units in physical contact with the enemy; insuring that intelligence units are active and alert; formulating and reviewing CBR defense plans; and stockpiling supplies and munitions to meet the demands.

Merchant Fleet Cut

Reduced demands for ships due to declining foreign aid exports and the building of only one merchant ship for private enterprise reduced the nation's overall active cargo and passenger-carrying fleet by 28 per cent since the beginning of the year, National Federation of American Shipping reported this week.

In a special mid-year study, the Federation's Research Department detailed the developments of the U. S. flag freighter and passenger-carrying fleet, as follows:

On 1 July the total active freighter and passenger fleet amounted to 1,098 ships, contrasted to 1,520 last 1 Jan. Of this decline, privately-owned active ships dropped only 1.3 per cent, from 842 to 831. Government-owned ships operated by private shipping lines dropped from 678 to 267 ships.

Only one merchant ship in the six months' period was added to the privately-owned cargo and passenger-carrying fleet, the SS UNITED STATES. At present there is not a single oceangoing dry cargo, combination or passenger vessel on order or under construction for registry under the U. S. flag. In comparison there is building or on order for registry under foreign flags in foreign shipyards 7,000,000 deadweight tons of such vessels.

Autopilot For 'Copters

The Air Force has awarded a $4,476,795 order to the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company for automatic pilots for helicopters. Developed by the company's Aeronautical Division in cooperation with the Air Force and the Piasecki Helicopter Corporation, the new autopilot is earmarked by the Air Force for use in the H21 Piasecki helicopter.

The autopilot stabilizes three ways with a quartet of gyros. One senses displacement in the roll-and-pitch axis, and the other three sense, respectively, rates of displacement in the roll, pitch and yaw axis. Three servos, one for each flight axis, operate the helicopter controls at full torque instantly upon being energized.

Contracts for Small Craft

Contracts for small craft construction totaling more than $7,000,000 were announced late last week by Rear Adm. Homer N. Wallin, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships. The awards were made during May and June of 1952.

The contracts provide for construction of 316 small vessels and barges. Many of the craft are to be built for the Army and Air Force and are being purchased by the Bureau of Ships under single service procurement.

Twenty-nine contract awards were made to 24 firms, 21 of which are classified as small business. Nine of the firms are on the east coast, eight on the west coast, six on inland waterways and one on the gulf coast.

Vessels to be built range from nine-foot plastic dinghies up to 120-foot deck cargo barges. Also included are 10-foot plastic dinghies, 26-foot plastic utility boats, 26-foot plastic motor whaleboats, 33-foot, 40-foot and 50-foot utility boats, 28-foot and 40-foot personnel boats, various steel barges and lighters, an aircraft rescue boat, 35-foot motor boats and 17-foot line handling boats.

P. W. Rhame Joins Allison

Appointment of Paul W. Rhame as assistant general manager of the Allison Division has been announced by C. E. Wilson, President of General Motors Corporation. He succeeds Robert M. Critchfield who was appointed general manager of the Pontiac Motor Division at Pontiac, Mich.

Previous to his appointment at Allison, Mr. Rhame has been general manager of the Rochester Products Division at Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Rhame will report to Allison the latter part of July, according to E. B. Newill, vice president of General Motors and general manager of Allison.

Economic Mobilization Course

Rear Adm. W. McL. Hague, USN, Commandant of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, has announced the schedule of its sixth annual series of Field Economic Mobilization Courses, to be held during the 1952-53 academic year. These courses will be presented in cities distributed geographically as follows:

Houston, Tex., 22 Sept.-3 Oct.; Wichita, Kan., 29 Sept.-10 Oct.; Baton Rouge, La., 13 Oct.-24 Oct.; Erie, Pa., 27 Oct.-7 Nov.; Long Beach, Calif., 10-21 Nov.; Seattle, Wash., 1-12 Dec.; Akron, Ohio, 5-16 Jan. 1953; Tulsa, Okla., 19-30 Jan.; San Francisco, Calif., 9-20 Feb.; Phoenix, Ariz., 16-27 Feb.; Miami, Fla., 16-27 March; New York, N. Y., 23 Mar.-3 Apr.; Philadelphia, Pa., 20 Apr.-1 May; Salt Lake City, Utah, 27 Apr.-8 May; Knoxville, Tenn., 25 May-5 June; Duluth, Minn., 1-12 June.

The Field Economic Mobilization Course, of two weeks duration, is a condensed version of the 10-month Resident Course given at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D. C. It is part of the Department of Defense program for Reserve Officers of all the services and for officers of the National Guard. The course presents the problems confronting the country in a mobilization of the national economy for war; outlines the resources and economies of major world powers and areas; and examines methods and procedures for making the best use of resources in support of the Armed Forces. This broad background orientation is valuable to the officers who would be called to command, staff and planning assignments. The approach is entirely educational as the College is not an advisory, planning or operating agency.

Reserve Officers apply, through military channels, to the respective Army, Naval District or Air Force Commanders within whose Command the course is being presented; National Guard and Air National Guard Officers to the Chief, National Guard Bureau. Upon selection, officers are ordered to active duty for the period of instruction.

Executives of industry, educators and prominent citizens are also invited to attend. Because the type of individual who would elect to take this instruction would rarely be able to leave his office for a long period of time, the course is held in industrial centers distributed throughout the country. For the same reason the schedule is limited to 4 hours daily for two 5-day weeks. This permits part-time attention to business affairs. Civilian participants are selected by civilian committees appointed by leaders in the local community.

Signal Corps Shifts

The Office of the Chief Signal Officer has announced the appointment of Lt. Col. Harry Margolies as Department of Army Signal Corps representative on the Joint Electronic Warfare Panel of the Joint Communications-Electronics Committee. Colonel Margolies replaces Lt. Col. Edward D. Jenkins. As the alternate member, Maj. Chester A. Hall replaces Maj. Glenn A. Welde.

Lt. Col. Clyde D. Clancy has been designated Chief, Communication Networks Branch, Army Communications Service Division, OCSigO, replacing Lt. Col. William G. Golladay. Colonel Golladay leaves the Office of the Chief Signal Officer to attend the General Staff and Command School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Tape Recorder Contract

A $350,000 contract for the manufacture of 600 of a new type of magnetic tape recorder for the Navy has been awarded to the Daystrom Electric Corp., James F. Brehm, president, has announced.

The general purpose recorders will be made for the Bureau of Ships of the Navy Department and used on both ship and land based operations, as well as other work.

2-STORY DRILL

Thousands of production man-hours are being saved by a leading aircraft manufacturer with a two-story-tall drilling tool used in production of jet transports. The tool, which weighs 30,000 pounds, fabricates magnesium floor plates for a modern Navy transport.

Steel Stoppage Cuts Arms Output 20 to 30 Per Cent

On the eve of a White House conference between leaders of industry and labor in another effort to settle the steel strike, Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett told a press conference that the strike already had cost the Armed Forces between 20 and 30 per cent of the scheduled production of important military equipment. The Secretary said the strike had done more damage to national defense than a heavy bombing raid.

The Secretary said that he was authorized by the President to reveal as much information as possible in order to show the disastrous effect of the strike on the military readiness of the nation. Citing scores of items on which production had ceased or had been greatly curtailed the Secretary said that in certain types of ammunition the expenditure in battle in Korea during July and August would exceed production in those months.

For some time after the start of the strike, the Secretary pointed out, production was able to continue because of inventories of steel in the hands of the producers and stocks on hand and in the pipe line. However, these resources are approaching exhaustion and munitions factories are beginning to close or to curtail greatly their rate of production.

Shortages Told

The Secretary said that the 57mm ammunition for the recoilless rifle was now being fired at a greater rate in Korea than it was being manufactured in the United States. The North American Aviation Company, the Secretary said, reported that it was short 422 parts needed in the manufacture of the F-86 Sabre Jet, the main opposition to the enemy MIG in Korea. He said that the Boeing B-47, the new jet bomber, might be completely out of production by the end of next week. Republic Aviation, manufacturers of the F-84 Thunder Jet, an important fighter-bomber participating actively in the Korean war, reported that they had no stocks of urgently needed stainless steel bar or rod steel. The Navy reported steel shortages for several types of ships' guns.

So seriously is aircraft production affected by the steel strike, Mr. Lovett said that even if there were an immediate settlement it would be from three to six months before orderly production of military equipment could be resumed, and the rate of the previously scheduled output again reached. He said the strike came at the worst possible time, just as the defense effort was attaining its accelerated rate, so necessary to national security.

Production Crippled

The Secretary declared: "No enemy nation could have so crippled our production as has this work stoppage. No form of bombing could have taken out of production in one day 380 steel plants and keep them out nearly two months. The weird and tragic thing is that we have done this to ourselves. Whether it is murder committed by someone else, or suicide by ourselves, the effect is the same."

In response to an inquiry the Secretary said that the serious effect of the strike on military production might indicate the desirability of maintaining larger war reserves in order to take care of a similar contingency in the future. He also said that a previous proposal for the establishment of government-owned steel plants, not affected by labor difficulties, might be restudied. Heretofore the policy of the government has been to rely on private manufacture of steel and of finished munitions. The Secretary suggested that a change of this policy might be considered.
